Highway 35 crash sends woman to Minden Hospital

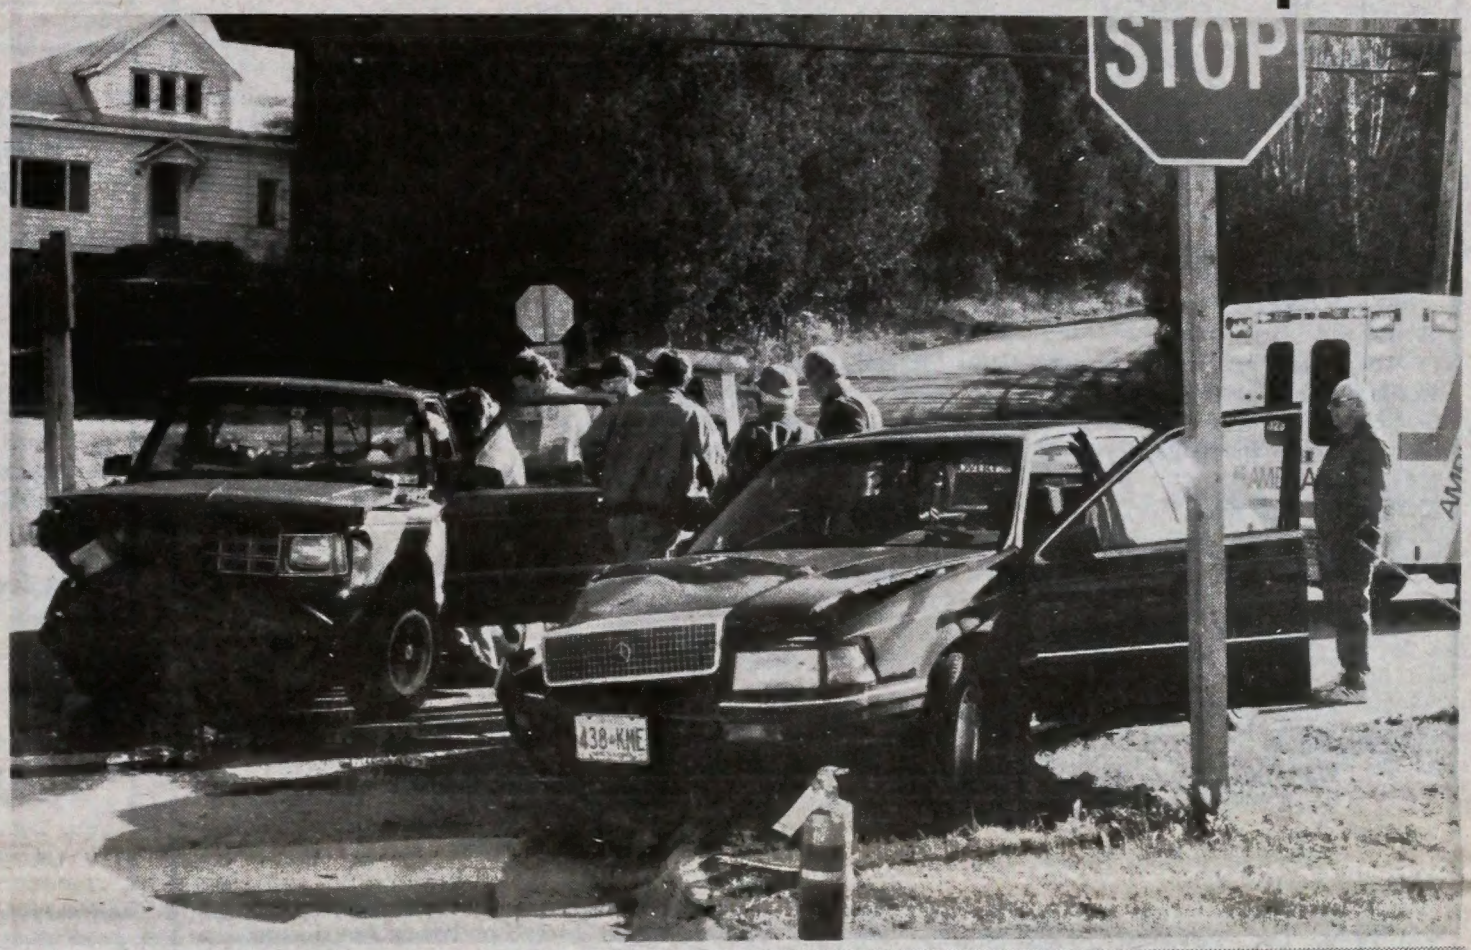
by Jerry Grozelle

A two-vehicle accident at the corner of Highway 35 and Bobcaygeon Road in Minden Wednesday afternoon sent the driver of one vehicle to Minden Hospital where she was treated and released.

Police say Michele Reid, 33, of Whitby was southbound on Highway 35, approaching the junction of Bobcaygeon Road in a 1988 Chevrolet S-10 pickup truck when William Heaton, 66, of Lutterworth Township, driving a 1992 Plymouth Acclaim, attempted to make a left turn onto Bobcaygeon Road.

Reid suffered facial injuries in the collision. Heaton was shaken up in the accident, but otherwise unhurt.

Police say that speed was not a factor and both drivers wore seatbelts. The accident is still under investigation and charges are pending.



Injuries not life-threatening

Michele Reid of Whitby is helped by ambulance officers after a collision at Highway 35 and Bobcaygeon Road in Minden last Wednesday. Reid suffered facial injuries in the crash while the driver of the other vehicle, William Heaton, was only shaken up.

Optional advance polls draw 3.6 % of voters

A total of 812 voters turned up for the advance polls held October 29 in the municipalities of Anson, Hindon and Minden, of Dysart et al, and of Glamorgan.

Results by township are: 368 voters in Anson Hindon and Minden (from a voting list of 6,601), 258 voters in Dysart et al (from a list of around 13,000), and 186 voters in Glamorgan (from a list of 3,112).

Eric Nystedt memorial

Stan Brown, an employee of Dollo's IGA in Minden holds a newly-planted white ash sapling while his son Brock slips a protective cylinder over it. The IGA provided the trees, while store employees, OPP officers and members of the Minden Beavers did the planting. A total of 100 trees were planted along the shore of Minden Lake, in memory of OPP Constable Eric Nystedt, who was killed in the line of duty.

Emergency services will remain

Short term bed closures

Three-week bed closures at both the Minden and Haliburton hospitals in 1995 will save more than $55,500 say officials of St. Joseph's Hospital and Health Care Centre. The measure is aimed at reducing the growing deficits at both facilities.

Most of the savings will be realized in salaries, which account for 75 per cent of the hospital operating budgets. Meetings are being scheduled with employees of the hospitals to iron out some details. Some may opt to take their holidays at the times of the bed closures and others may be forced to take unpaid leave.

Minden's hospital will be the first to have its beds closed. A three-week period from March 4 to 24, 1995 has been chosen because that is typically a time of decreased activity at the hospital. The same holds true for the time of the Haliburton hospital bed closure, which will be from November 4 to 24 of 1995.

Hospital officials say the process will be evaluated after the first trial period to see if it is worth repeating.

The cost reduction measure was reviewed by the Fiscal Advisory Committee of the two hospitals and endorsed by the Community Advisory Committee, St. Joseph's Board of Trustees, the District Health Council and the Ministry of Health as the only effective way of reducing operating expenses without affecting overall hospital services to the community.

St. Joseph's Board of Trustees accepted the proposal at its September meeting and then sent it to the Ministry of Health and District Health Council for approval. In October, the ministry gave the proposal its stamp of approval.

Bed closures won't have any effect on government funding for the beds. Tanya Stewart, co-ordinator of public relations and communications at St. Joseph's, said that the hospitals are funded on a global budget, not on an activity budget, so funding from the government wouldn't be affected.

Anyone who is in need of extended attention while the beds are closed at either of the county hospitals will be transported to another facility. The need for extended care would be assessed by the person's physician.

While the beds are closed, emergency and organized out-patient care services such as x-ray and physiotherapy will continue. Staffing in the hospital with no active patient beds will consist of one registered nurse and one registered practical nurse for three shifts each day. There will also be one support person on duty for the day shift, seven days a week.

Over the past three years, both hospitals have been in deficit positions. The combined deficit for the two hospitals for 1994 is expected to be about $178,000.

Meet the AH&M Board of Education hopefuls

Four candidates vye for three AH&M trustee seats

by Jerry Grozelle

The race for three trustee positions on the Haliburton County Board of Education the represent Anson, Hindon and Minden will leave one person disappointed when the ballots are counted a week from today. Four people, three of them incumbents, are vying for three seats. Following are profiles of the four candidates:

Wendy Ladurantaye

The big issue in education for the future, as Wendy Ladurantaye sees it, is finances -- trying to balance the budget as provincial funding diminishes. Ladurantaye is hoping to be elected to her fourth term as an Anson, Hindon and Minden representative on the Haliburton County Board of Education.

Ladurantaye, along with Bryan Kernohan and Len Salvatori have been working on a profile to take to the Ministry of Education explaining how the Haliburton area is different than urban areas. A proposal will be submitted to the ministry, asking for a re-evaluation of the way grants to small boards are calculated.

"If I'm re-elected, it will be a carry-over from what I'm working on now," she said.

Building is going to be another issue, she says.

"We're running out of space in our schools," she said. "and we're going to have to address that."

Working on the Education Committee for the last few years, Ladurantaye says she's aware of many changes to curriculum.

"Testing is a really positive step to see how well our kids are doing," Ladurantaye said. "Our kids are actually doing fairly well. We can be proud of what we've done so far. But, we can always improve and the testing shows us where we can improve."

Ladurantaye says computers and broad-based technology are the big trends of the future.

She also foresees changes in the way school boards are run.

"I think when you're a small board, out of necessity, you operate on a tight budget. You're very accountable to the people," she said.

She says the policies set by the ministry are aimed at the large centres where, unlike Haliburton, violence and heritage language are issues.

"We're going to feel the effects of that (large board problems) here," she said.

Ladurantaye isn't worried about Bill 163, wherein people who hold public office must disclose their assets.

"This is a small community," she said "and everybody knows your business anyway."

Ladurantaye said that she has been encouraged to run for the school board again by some people from whom she never expected support. She said she had to take a hard look at whether or not to run again, but after discussions with her family and the support of the community, she decided to make the commitment for another three years, if the electors respond favourably.

"I still feel I can contribute something," she said. "I've really enjoyed working with the board. We have a good board and I feel we have a lot of integrity. I like being a part of that and I'd like to continue serving the community in that sense."

Wally Bunn

Trying to maintain a quality level of education in Haliburton in the face of government cutbacks is one major challenge that Wally Bunn sees for the future. Bunn is campaigning to be elected to his third term with the Haliburton County Board of Education.

Additions to the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School and J. D. Hodgson Elementary School; broad-based technology; and computer programs are other issues that are expected to come to the forefront over the next term of office of the board's trustees.

Bunn says Haliburton has a small board with a small budget, compared to larger centres. But the government seems to be tailoring its policies to the large urban boards. He added that it will be a challenge to provide the level of education that the kids in the city get.

The county has two fewer teachers now than it had in 1990, in spite of the fact that there are 300 more students than there were in 1990.

"We should have hired 24 more teachers," he said. "The government is not helping us to educate the kids. But we'll keep trying to do the best we can for the kids in our area. The kids are the future."

Bunn served as chair of the Management Committee for two years and vice chair for a year before that.

People don't realize the work that is involved for a trustee on the board. Bunn said that he has attended more than 135 meetings in the past year.

Jim Davis

Jim Davis has made it a four-way race for three positions as school board trustee representing Anson, Hindon and Minden.

Davis says he thinks there is a lack of communication between the school board and the public as well as between trustees and teachers.

"I think there is a lack of trust to some extent, by at least some of the people I've talked to," Davis said. "I don't think they trust the trustees. One individual told me she asked three people (on the school board) a question and she got three different answers that were basically absurd.

"I, personally, want to see more open communication between the trustees and the constituents, and I want to see better communication between the trustees and the teachers. Teachers are the ones dealing directly with the children. And yet, I don't think the trustees deal much with the teachers, they tend to deal more with the administration."

Taxes are also of paramount importance, according to Davis.

"Holding the line on taxes is certainly going to be an important issue and I believe that the line on taxes probably can be held. I think there's a need to look at the budget and to look at spending and maybe re-distribute the money in different places."

He says he'd like to have a look at the finances.

"There may be programs that are overfunded and others that are underfunded," Davis said. "I think the budgets need to be scrutinized."

He added that he thinks the board should hold the line on taxes while providing the best education possible for the students.

Before he retired, recently, Davis supervised the lines department at Ontario Hydro in Minden. Davis said his experience in the past was working with a large group of people and being responsible for budgeting anywhere between $5-and $10-million.

"I was in charge of the budget there," he said. "I feel I can contribute to that process (with the board)."

Too much emphasis may be directed at the high-tech end of education at the expense of the fundamentals, Davis says.

"I'm also a bit of a believer in the possibility of a little bit more fundamental education," Davis said. "A lot of the parents seem to be interested in more fundamental education for the students. Some of the fundamentals seem to be getting glossed over.

"One of the other reasons I ran was to give the people a choice," Davis said. "I didn't want to have everybody acclaimed automatically, without giving the voters a chance to hear the issues."

Davis said he doesn't necessarily believe that if things are working well, they have to be fixed anyway.

"I don't have any pre-set destiny in mind," Davis said. "But I really want an opportunity, if elected, to study what's happening with the board."

Bryan Kernohan

Bryan Kernohan is running for trustee on the Haliburton County Board of Education, representing Anson, Hindon and Minden.

The Social Contract and how it will affect the local board in the future; implementation of the Violence in Schools policy; the Royal Commission on Learning; and amalgamation of school boards are a few of the issues that Kernohan expects to deal with if he is re-elected to the board of education on November 14.

Kernohan says it is the board's responsibility to make sure the quality of education provided in Haliburton County

Meet the Stanhope candidates

Two running for Stanhope's reeve's chair

FRED GARDNER

Fred Gardner is seeking a third term on Stanhope council; his second as Reeve of the municipality. He served as councillor for three years; his first foray into municipal politics. An active member of the Halls/Hawk Lakes Property Owners Association for 15 years prior to standing for office, he served on the municipal committee which drafted the township's first zoning bylaw.

Gardner says that during the past three years as head of the council, a great deal has been accomplished. Referring to his campaign literature from three years ago, he notes that most of goals he outlined in that material have been realized. The material lists: fiscal responsibility for county government; the replacement of the township's three fire vehicles; expansion of the Hawk lake land fill site; resisting the introduction of market value assessment; moving ahead on a county-wide waste management effort and recycling program and "to approach county restructuring with careful consideration... having regard to community feelings. "Looking back over the material, I feel that most of those goals have been achieved," he commented.

As to the next three years, Gardner believes it is time the township developed its own official plan. "The county planning process is now stalled, however I still believe in the value of official plans, but think they should start at the municipal level," the incumbent said. He expressed concern that the township could suffer if an official plan is not in place. He pointed out that the Ontario Government and the Ontario Municipal Board are increasingly insistent that official plans be in place before allowing major development. "Grant programs could be held up if we don't have an official plan," he said.

He will also be working to hold taxes to as small an increase as possible at both the municipal and county levels. "We still have to deliver the core services that the taxpayers demand and expect," he commented. "But we have to resist the down-loading of programs from the province that is increasing the burden, both financial and legal, on municipalities." As an example, he cited the provincial government abandoning the maintenance of canoe portages in the area and the expectation that the municipality would pick up the chore.

He noted that 26.5 cents of every tax dollar collected by the municipality is actually spent by the township. The remaining portion is passed on to the County and the board of education.

The candidate noted that major improvements have been made to the equipment at the Stanhope Fire Department including the acquisition of two new pumper/tanker trucks and the purchase of a rescue van is in the works. He said the council has drawn on its reserves for these major purchases and feels it is time to increase the funds held in these accounts.

The restructuring of the county is an item Gardner approaches with caution. He believes it is an issue that needs to be examined, but is concerned that if Stanhope becomes part of a larger municipal body, it could lose the "community feeling" which exists. He questions whether restructuring is something which can originate from within the county and suggests it may take direction from the province to get the process moving

At the county level, Gardner says the reserves, which have been severely depleted over the past three years, need to be built up again. He notes that the expected reduction in welfare expenses and the elimination of the planning department should result in savings for the county in the coming year; money which could be assigned to the reserves. The incumbent said he didn't believe this was a good time for the county to be constructing a new building. "I realize the present building is not the most adequate, but I feel we should wait until the county is on a stronger financial footing before proceeding with this project.

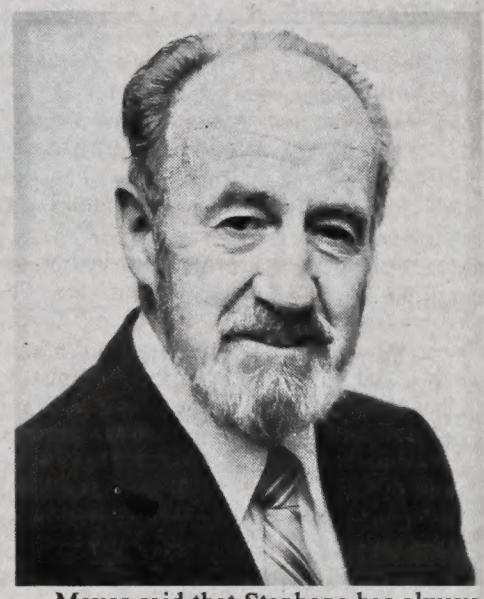
Gardner said he is pleased with the accomplishments of the Stanhope council over the past three years. He points to the new St. Peter's bridge at Maple Lake, the improved fire equipment and the introduction of the recycling/composting program as successes during the past term.

JOCK MAVOR

The challenger for the reeve's chair, Jock Mavor is no stranger to municipal politics in Stanhope Township. He served as a councillor six years ago and has been a keen observer of the process in the intervening years.

He says his main emphasis in the coming term would be to provide what he describes as "good stewardship" of the tax dollars the municipality spends. "It is going to be difficult in the coming years," the candidate predicts. "There is no doubt the province and the federal government will continue reducing transfer payments, potentially increasing the burden on local taxpayers. My job as I see it will be to get the most from the tax dollars available." He points to his work experience as a manager with the Toronto Transit Commission and as a transit consultant an excellent background in budgeting.

Mavor does have concerns about the way school taxes are collected in the province. He says it is inequitable for school funding to be collected based on property taxes. "The system puts a heavy burden on the seasonal residents of our townships and throughout the county." He suggests that schools should be funded through provincial tax revenue. He notes that the current system means that Haliburton County is identified as "rich" area when it comes to education support. "It is hard to fathom how this can be the case," he commented.



Mavor said that Stanhope has always functioned well fiscally. "The township has always been in the black," he said, "and I want to see that continue. He would not make any predictions or promises regarding taxes, but said he would ensure that good management is brought to bear on the township's financial planning.

The candidate feels that at the county level it is time to get on with health care planning. "I have no axe to grind for either community," he commented, but like many throughout the county, he contributed to the hospital fund, and would like to see something done with those dollars.

Meet the Stanhope Candidates

Seven candidates vying for three Stanhope council seats

ANN BARKER

After serving five years as a councillor and three years as deputy reeve of Stanhope Township, Ann Barker is once again letting her name stand for council. "I want to see continuous growth and prosperity in the township ," she commented, "I think I still have something to offer."

Barker is very pragmatic in her approach to service as a councillor. She notes that each issue which comes before the council is very important to the individuals involved. "I will do my utmost to support those who come to council and who have the bylaws supporting their position. Even when they present a position I do not necessarily support, the people have their rights under the bylaws of the municipality and that must be respected."

The environment is an important issue for the Stanhope election she said. "We must ensure that it is protected." Barker suggested that a small industry could be created around the recycling effort currently taking place in the county. "It is something that should be looked at...it could provide employment."

Barker said that she sees a time when fire protection and road services could be provided on a county-wide basis. "I'm not suggesting that we should have a one tier government. Each area has its own identity, but there is a need for greater efficiency and the subsequent savings." She points to the reduction in provincial government financial support as one of the major reasons the council should be looking for ways to save money.

Reflecting on the township's road crew, Barker said the township is fortunate to have the staff that it does. "They do a good job, they're dedicated, hard working and often work long hours, especially in the winter.

Commenting on issues surrounding the fire department, Barker said she can't understand why, when the county has 600 lakes and rivers, the fire departments are not allowed to perform ice and water rescues. She pointed out that there are already a number of firemen who are trained SCUBA divers who have some experience in such activities. "I realize their are liabilities involved and additional costs, but we have to make an effort. The more training these people have the better it will be for all of us." She noted that the Highlands invest a great deal of time and resources in attracting tourists to the area. "We are not providing the security for these people," she commented.

Barker said she would like to see better communications between the council and the taxpayers. She said the people should be aware of the problems with which the council is dealing. "This may not eliminate all the conflicts, but it should improve the understanding and at least help get rid of the 'rumour factor'."

"I guess I've become known as an outspoken individual, but I am always willing to listen," Barker concluded. "I just want to put something back into the community for the future."

MURRAY DANIELS

Murray Daniels is seeking his third term as councillor on the Stanhope council. He has been a resident of the area since 1981 and a cottage owner in the municipality since 1974.

"I've always had an interest in politics and feel I have something to offer to the residents of Stanhope Township," the incumbent candidate commented.

Despite the increasing burden placed on municipalities by the province, Daniels feels things have gone well during the most recent term in office. He noted that with the co-operation of all municipal employees, the social contract legislation of last year had a minimal impact. "They all shared the burden," he said, "they're a great group of people who made it very easy for the council."

Pointing to other accomplishments, he noted the construction of the St. Peter's bridge at maple Lake was completed at a cost of only $150,000 to the municipality, and the fire department has received an infusion of money to update its equipment. He noted that a study is currently underway to improve co-ordination of fire protection services across the county. He said there will likely be changes coming in the new year which

Deputy reeve returned by acclamation

Seeking her second term on the Stanhope council as Deputy Reeve, Eleanor Harrison was unopposed and was acclaimed to office at the close of the nomination process October 14.

"I enjoy the challenge and these will be challenging times, " she commented. While she is generally pleased with the way the municipality of Stanhope has operated during the past three years, she is very concerned about what lies ahead for the county.

"Something needs to be done and I want to be a part of the decision-making process," Harrison commented in outlining her reasons for standing for office. "At the moment I do not believe this county is ready for one tier government. That would be too close to the regional model. However it is clear that something has to be done to make municipal operations in the county more efficient."

Harrison cited as an example the operation of the fire departments and the roads departments. She noted that even if formal municipal amalgamation did not take place, there are savings to be realized in having these departments in various jurisdictions make group purchases. "If one fire department is making a purchase, like 30 firemen bunker suits (protective wear), it make sense that a larger order of 100 suit would likely result in a lower price for all concerned." She pointed out there are other areas in municipal expenditure where savings can be realized and municipal politicians will have to search them out or the smaller municipalities will find themselves in difficulty.

She noted that Stanhope Township has a fairly strong tax base, but suggested that a time will come when a single township municipality just won't be able to provide all the services the residents expect. "The writing is on the wall," she commented.

Harrison admitted that one of the biggest impediments to a restructuring process will be municipalities' desire to retain as much autonomy as possible. Referring to the disagreements that always seem to arise between Minden and Haliburton, she said it will not be an easy thing to resolve. "Everyone has to put on their county 'hats' and do what is best for the region as a whole." Harrison said that the county has lacked an identity and direction which made it difficult for efficient budgeting and planning. "The municipal politicians have to determine what role the county is going to play and then they have to stand behind that decision and allow that level of government to get on with it. " She said without that clear mandate and division of responsibilities it will be difficult for the area to see any progress.

Harrison said there are no outstanding issues which lie ahead at the local level for her township. "The municipality is well-managed and we can thank our clerk and all the staff for that," she commented.

"I always have been and will continue to be proud to represent Stanhope," she concluded.

R-2000 EXCELLENCE THE BETTER BUILT HOME

could result in savings. Also, the waste management program underway in the township, though working well, could be improved and he would like to see the township take advantage of the infrastructure support being provided by the senior levels of government.

Daniels said the township is in sound financial condition.

Still, with the county perspective, the candidate predicted that restructuring is inevitable in the county. "We may not benefit from it," he said, "but we must realize that we are not an island unto ourselves." He suggests that the council should be actively involved and concerned about the restructuring process, noting that if the council does not have input, it may not like what the provincial government will force upon it.

The incumbent said he was disappointed with the way the county government worked over the past three years..."the system, not the people," he emphasized. He said it is difficult for any serious planning to be accomplished and suggested that one remedy would be for the warden to hold the office for a three year term. "That way the warden would be able to finish the plans that he started and provide leadership for the county."

JIM HICKS

Jim Hicks has had an association with Stanhope Township for the past 60 years as a cottager. He became a permanent resident in 1986 and is seeking his secong term as councillor.

He feel that Stanhope has been fortunate to have good government and leadership over many years. This has been backed up by an excellent staff and, "I want to see that continue."

Hicks said the introduction of the recycling program in the township has proved to be a good idea and he would like to see it continue. He noted that reconstruction of several township roads took place over the past few years and more work is planned for the coming year. Hicks also noted that new hangars have been added at the Stanhope Airport and additions have been made to the fire department's equipment and building, plus an addition to the Fire Fighters Hall.

The incumbent noted that these improvements were accomplished with a minimal tax increase....just 3%. Most of that increase can be associated with the costs involved in the waste management area. "The citizens told us that they wanted recycling, and that they would be willing to pay extra for it." He said the recycling effort has resulted in a decrease in the cost of dump management.

Hicks said he enjoyed his first term on the council and meeting and working with new people and was looking forward to carrying on. He said since the township is involved with a sensitive environmental issues, such as gravel pits and lake-front development, the council should investigate the establishment of an environmental committee. Such a committee would be useful in assessing the large volume of information that must be considered before decisions can be made on issues like this.

CAROL MOFFATT

Carol Moffatt, who is taking her first run at municipal politics, says it is time people of her generation take some responsibility for the community in which they live and work. She sees her candidacy as a "link" between the generations. "The next generation must begin to learn the process of government," she said. "I offer a new perspective, a sensible approach to decision making and the ability to remain objective in a small community."

Moffatt is concerned with the county-wide decision which has stopped firemen from carrying on ice and water rescue. She described the prohibition as "foolish", saying it was a decision based on fear-mongering and lack of information. She claims there is little difference in the danger a fireman is exposed to in fighting a fire and carrying out a rescue on ice or water. "It is an insult to the training of our fire crews that, with proper training, they are unable to carry out a rescue on the ice or in water." She noted that firemen are trained to respond in emergency situations, and to do it safely. "It's just a matter of training." If elected to council, she said would push for the training to take place.

Moffatt is also concerned that the upgrading of roads in the municipality appears to concentrated on just a few routes. She noted that the municipality has spent a great deal of money on the Hawk Lake Road, however there are many other roads in the township which need attention.

She also supports the recycling effort which has begun in the municipality. Pointing out that it has lengthened the lives of the township's dumps, she said the township has also saved money in dump maintenance.

BOB POLLARD

Bob Pollard, an employee of the Ministry of Natural Resources for the past 22 years, feels he has knowledge and experience from that post which would be of value as a member of the township council. He has been a resident of the township for the past seven years and is employed at the Frost Centre. He was recently appointed chief of the Stanhope Fire Department.

"Many of the issues coming before the Stanhope Council involve land use, forestry practises and the fisheries," he commented. "These are areas where I have been involved through my work at MNR, so I believe I have a broad knowledge that would be of value in dealing with these items as they come to council for consideration.

Pollard will be aiming to "keep taxes down". He notes that his experience as an administrator with the Ministry of Natural Resources has given him the budgeting and spending control skills necessary to be a good councillor.

He currently serves as chairman of the waste management committee in Stanhope and is proud of the achievements the municipality has made in reducing the amount of waste entering township dumps. However, he admits that there is still a way to go in educating the public in recycling and composting. He notes that the committee's newsletter has helped to spread the word but predicts when people realize there is a personal cost in not recycling or composting they will be more willing to become involved in these programs.

The fact that he is the chief of the municipal fire department does not pose a potential conflict Pollard said. He checked with the township clerk before filing his nomination papers and was assured that holding both posts would not create a problem.

Pollard said he favours providing training for Stanhope firefighters in ice and water rescue.

DALE MacDONALD

While Dale MacDonald is not an incumbent candidate, he is familiar with the municipal political scene in Stanhope Township, having served as a councillor for two terms, 12 years ago. He said that one of his prime motivations for seeking the seat is the amount of encouragement he has received from citizens throughout the township.

He describes as "ridiculous" the situation that in Haliburton County no fire department is authorized to perform ice and water rescues. "As it now stands, the proper procedure is to call the OPP. They can do nothing. The present council will not allow the firemen to take the training," he said. MacDonald said the firemen are ready and eager to take the proper training to provide this emergency service. "We have the necessary equipment and volunteers who are willing to take the training and share that training with the other members of the department."

MacDonald said the new council must stay on top of fiscal matters, especially in light of provincial cut-backs. He agreed however that the present council had done a reasonable job in holding the line on taxes. He predicts that will be even more difficult in the future.

He thinks the municipal council should set new priorities on the roads. He noted the municipality just spent a large sum of money on what he described at a dead-end road, referring to the reconstruction of the Hawk Lake Road. "I've heard some people refer to it as the Gardner Expressway," MacDonald said, an obvious reference to the incumbent reeve Fred Gardner. Spending infrastructure dollars on a road that is only covered in tar and chips is not a good use of these funds MacDonald indicated. He said some of the money spent on the project should have been allocated on other roads in the township.

MYRNNA McCARTHY

Making her first run for a seat on the municipal council, Myrnna McCarthy has been a full-time resident of the township since 1980 and a cottager for many years prior to that. She worked at IBM and 17 years at General Motors in Oshawa before moving here permanently.

She is seeking a seat on council because she would like to have a voice in how tax dollars are spent and to make a contribution toward improving the township. She thinks there should be open communication between taxpayers and members of the council and that more money should be spent on the township's roads. "The taxpayers deserve good roads...that is the main service the township provides to local residents and cottagers," McCarthy commented.

She feels council should be working toward reducing welfare costs and suggests that the municipality should be creating work programs for the unemployed whom she feels would welcome the opportunity to contribute to their community. She also suggests that a number of "town hall meetings" should be held during the summer months so that cottage owners would be able to attend. She said that taxpayers should be included in the decision making process and they should be encouraged to speak out on issues of concern. In turn, she said, council must listen to what the people have to say.

"I have a true interest in the growth of Stanhope Township and will be a dedicated councillor if elected," she said. "If not, I will remain a dedicated volunteer, worker for the township".

McCarthy concluded with an endorsement of another candidate on the ballot. "I am very pleased to see a young person as a candidate for council....and would like to see more take an interest in municipal affairs. I congratulate and support Carol Moffatt."

LEROY EAGER

As one of the longest serving trustees on the Haliburton County Board of Education, Stanhope's Leroy Eager has thrown his hat in the ring for another term. He has served the community in that capacity for 17 years.

For Eager the biggest issue is the need to hold the line on taxes. He points out that it is a difficult task with the province reducing support and requesting more school boards. "That might change with a different government in Queen's Park, but I don't think it will make too much of a difference," he commented referring to the fact the NDP mandate is expected come to come to an end some time next year.

Eager said it is difficult for the board when the province continues to add programs without providing the additional financial support. He said when new programs are introduced, the province often includes some start-up support but that quickly evaporates and the local board is left with the fiscal responsibility of maintaining the program.

"The school board has never passed a 'fat' budget," eager declared. "There is just no place left in which to make cuts." He said the best the board could do would be to hold the line. The incumbent suggested that the introduction of Junior Kindergarten should be optional. I'm not totally opposed to the program, however if it can't be operated efficiently, the board shouldn't become involved.

He pointed out that it is important for the students to get a thorough grounding in computers as they will play an important role in the future. He noted that the board has the hardware in place to ensure that learning can take place. As well, he noted the system has embarked on a broad-based technology education program which will ensure that students are better prepared for the challenges of post-secondary education.

"It is unfair to send students ill-prepared on to college or university," he commented.

TREVOR PAWSON

The challenger for Stanhope's only seat on the Haliburton County Board of Education is Trevor Pawson. He is running for the second time.

"I am running because I believe I have a lot to offer the system. I think it is time to see what 'new blood' on the board can do," he commented. He said the county system is a good one but it is increasingly coming under financial strains. "It will be difficult, under the mounting financial pressures....creativity will be needed to ensure the system continues to deliver the quality of education it now does."

Pawson has a life-long connection with the county having cottaged here all of his life. He became a permanent resident of the county 12 years ago when he was employed as a technician at the Ministry of Environment and Energy lab in Dorset. He has two youngsters attending elementary school in Minden and another who will be starting next year. He has served on a number of committees including the board's special education committee, the Amalgamation of children Services committee and Stanhope's waste management committee. I believe these years of service have given me an insight into how the system works," he commented.

He feel there is a need for increased lines of communication between the board and the ratepayers and between the board and the staff. "The board must be prepared to listen to the people on the front lines, the staff. These people know what is happening and have a lot of good ideas that should be heard," he commented.

He noted that there are some major decisions looming for the board on the future of the high school and Douglas Hodgson school in Haliburton. The board should be willing to consult with everyone who wants to make a presentation, before moving ahead, The board has to be more approachable, encourage more public input."

He admits that the board will be faced with incredible pressures to cut costs, but said the programs now offered through the schools should not be sacrificed. He said the board needs to be inventive so that the programs can be retained within the funds which are now available.

"I will bring lots of common sense and new ideas to the table," Pawson concluded. "I think I can be of value to the board.

Tough challenges ahead

Some have suggested that it is the lack of sports on television. Others say the good weather is responsible. Whatever it is, there seems to a heightened interest in the municipal election process this time around. Most of the all-candidates meetings have been well attended even though in many cases the audiences preferred to play the role of passive observers. The lack of clear-cut issues could be the reason for the muted response.

In any event, the interest appears to be strong and the talk over coffee these days concerns who will be the best representatives in each of the area's municipalities. This can only bode well for the process about to unfold next Monday. The voters have obviously been watching with keen interest as the candidates present their platforms.

The coming three years in Haliburton County and north Victoria County will be difficult ones for those who are successful when the counting is completed. As many of the candidates have identified, the dwindling financial support from the provincial government is having a major impact on how municipal governments and school boards operate. There is little doubt this trend will continue into the next term putting even greater pressures on these bodies to respond to the challenges without major tax increases.

In Haliburton County in particular, the need to begin a process of restructuring the way municipal services are delivered, appears to be an issue that will occupy the attention of politicians in all jurisdictions. The challenge facing the members of county council will be how to approach the problem. A softer approach would be a coordination of services and purchasing while the ten municipalities continue to exist as separate entities. The route that will yield the biggest benefits however, the reduction of the number of municipalities, will pose tougher challenges.

If the interest shown in the election so far is any indication, the politicians can be assured that following the tally next Monday, the voters will be watching closely to see how the process evolves. Faced with the tough challenges ahead, they will need the community's support and encouragement to see the task through to a successful conclusion.

What about the other 3%?

Editor:

During the past year, a concerned group has been actively working to bring TVOntario to those who do not have access to it, either through cable or fortuitous reception.

All of the arguments regarding the value to all age groups of the variety of educational and cultural programs - not available on other channels - are still relevant and need not be elaborated here again.

The Minister of Culture, Tourism and Recreation has recently written in response to my letter that "TVOntario is available to 97% of Ontario's population." This area happens to be among the 3% still waiting to be brought into the fold. The Minister stated further that their goal is that TVO should be available to all residents of Ontario but that financial constraints currently stand in the way of realizing that goal.

Financial constraints seemed not to extend to keeping the former Trade Envoy in Tokyo at a cost of $511,334 to cover salary, travel expenses and other allowances, this even though Premier Rae had officially closed the trade office. It is unlikely that this example of imprudent spending is an isolated one.

Apparently money can be found when it suits the government. Measured against total government spending, the cost of providing the necessary facilities to bring TVOntario to the Haliburton region is not that much. If those of you who are anxious that this should happen, and happen soon, write to the Minister and tell her so. Remember, it's the squeaky wheel that gets the grease!

Landmark and horses

Editor:

The old barn that stands beside the Highway 35 by-pass has been a landmark for many years, and the handsome horses that live there only add to the attractiveness of the scene.

But it seems that the cracks in the barn's stone foundation (on the highway side, at any rate) are wider and wider each time I pass. I only pray that the horses aren't standing in the passageway under the wooden superstructure when the foundation finally gives way and the whole thing comes crashing down.

Volunteers should not become discouraged

Editor:

The Members of the Acting Health Services Board of Haliburton County are to be congratulated for their dedication and their accomplishments, without compensation, for the benefit of all. Many give their time at the expense of their business and their families. Whether or not everyone agrees with the decisions made is irrelevant. This is a democracy where the will of the majority, in a fair and honest vote, should be final and irrevocable. We can only hope these members will not become discouraged because of the continuing and escalating levels of intimidations being visited upon their fellow members. It is the responsibility of this Board to deliver the best Health Care possible to the greatest number of people, with equal access to all, for the entire Haliburton County and the Northern portions of Victoria County, not any one isolated area.

On October 12, 1994, at the bimonthly meeting of the Committee, there was a vote regarding the proposed site for the Acute Care Hospital Beds in Haliburton County. I attended and personally saw one incidence of intimidation where a members of the audience appeared to physically threaten a member. The result of the vote on that occasion was that the beds not be located in Haliburton Village. During the following two weeks, we find there were further acts of intimidation. At the very next meeting, the same motion with minor changes was revisited. The result of this vote resulted in a complete reversal of the decision of two weeks previously - i.e., that the beds would now be located in Haliburton Village. Does this not strongly suggest possible coercion, particularly in view of the charges made by those members who subsequently resigned? In my opinion, this smacks of interference, with the result that the vote was "tainted". Because of this do you not agree that an in-depth investigation is warranted?

I must also express my concern that anyone would allow themselves to be threatened or intimidated or that furthermore they would remnain quiet and not accuse those involved.

Ice and water rescue training for firemen

Editor:

Stanhope Fire Fighters are a well trained, well qualified department. They function this way because of dedication to their job, team work and they have always had responsible leadership.

One of the issues that was very much in evidence at Saturday's Meet the Candidates was that of Ice/Water Rescue.

I have both a son and son-in-law on SFD and it is my understanding that these men could be dismissed from the Fire Department if they were to attempt to rescue a person in trouble whether in the water or on the ice, if they respond in Fire Department gear. They would not be dismissed if they responded on their own time. They are however, allowed to cross the water to fight a fire. Does this mean that if a Firefighter fell from the boat he would remain in the water until someone else rescues him, for fear of our men being terminated, or does he swim to shore? One concern I have is when are they not a Fire Fighter? Any of the SFD guys I know are Fire Fighters 24 hours a day.

It is also my understanding that present council fears a lawsuit should a Fire Fighter die or be seriously injured during ice/water rescue. These men face this possibility in any call they respond to. It was stated by Mr. Gardner , this responsibility falls to the police.

I also understand this present council told SFD they could not arrange to attend a "Train the Trainer" course, even thought these men were willing to pay the cost of their own.

Dale McDonald stated at the candidates meeting that this department already has the necessary equipment for shore based rescue. He, along with other fire fighters want the right to do these rescues. I understand that there are three certified divers on the department as well. One of the most important tools in this type of rescue is manpower. Stanhope has this when police are often busy elsewhere.

Every summer I watch young children and adults jump/dive from St. Peter's Road bridge. The water is deep in some areas and full of large boulders just under the water in other spots. People doing these jumps/dives don't see them. One day someone will be hurt or killed. If this were my child and the Fire Department was not allowed to respond, as the parent of that child, I would most definitely sue the township, especially since nothing is done to prevent them jumping from the bridge.

Council is in a Catch-22 situation here. As a taxpayer and as a mother/mother-in-law of two of Stanhope's finest, I would much rather have the fire fighter properly trained to rescue that person, than be sued because they were forbidden to respond.

I asked Mr. Gardner if someone is injured from the St. Peter's Road bridge incidents, do I call the fire department for immediate rescue or call the police to recover the body.

He declined to answer.

Walking is making a comeback

Great news folks! It looks like the world of personal exercise is finally returning to the realm of sanity. If you'd care to jump on the sweat-stained bandwagon, here's what you do:

Throw away your Spandex tights.

Put your Stationary Exercise bike in a garage sale.

Sell your chest expanders, your Pow-R-Grips, your ankle weights and your Joe Weider-How-To-Look-Like-Schwarzenegger-In-90-Days Video.

Let cobwebs grow on your Nautilus. Give your barbells to that lout of a nephew who's probably gobbling steroids anyway. Have your $180 cross-training jogging shoes bronzed and plant geraniums in them.

You don't need that stuff anymore, because Walking is In.

Yep, just plain and simple walking. No special sunglasses, no Gortex jumpsuit, no ultra-lite fibreglass poles. All you need is a comfortable pair of shoes and a sense of curiosity.

You can burn as many calories walking for an hour as you can busting your lungs runnings laps around the track. The difference is, with walking, you don't end up feeling like you've been hit by a speeding laundry van.

Some folks are serious walkers. Take Jack Hitt. Jack's a guy who makes his living as a scribbler in darkest, downtown New York. A couple of years ago he decided he needed to get away from it all, so he flew to France, bought a backpack and started walking.

Eight hundred miles and two mountain ranges later he pulled up in Santiago de Compostela, which is about as far as you can go in northwestern Spain without tumbling into the Atlantic Ocean.

Jack had retraced the route taken by Christian pilgrims back in medieval times - and he'd done it step by gruelling step.

Lots of folks see Spain and France from an air-conditioned bus, or through the windshield of a rented car. Seeing it on foot is a whole different experience and a fascinating one. You can read about it in Hitt's book, Off the Road: A Modern Day Walk Down the Pilgrim's Route Into Spain. It's just out - published by Simon and Shuster.

Ffyona Campbell hasn't written a book yet, but I'll bet she's going to. She'll probably get down to it as soon as she finishes soaking her feet.

Ffyona ambled into John O'Groats late one afternoon last month. John O'Groats is as far north as you can go in Britain without tumbling into the North Sea.

Mind you, Ffyona had been there before. In 1983, as a matter of fact, when she walked out of John O'Groats.

Black 'n White
by Arthur Black

In the 11 years in between her visits, Ffyona had walked. And walked and walked and walked. From the top of Britain to Land's End at the bottom. Then just for good measure she strolled across Europe. And Africa. And Asia. And Australia. And then she walked from New York to Los Angeles.

"I just wanted to see how far I could go," the 27-year-old woman explained. Adventures on the way? Believe it. It took nearly two years to get across Africa, including a near-rape in Morocco and a political riot in Zaire.

Was it worth it? Well, it got her in the Guiness Book of Records as the first woman to walk around the world.

In terms of personal rewards, I've seen a photograph of Ffyona Campbell. She's as slim as an ultra-marathoner, looks very fit and ruddy. And appears to have great legs.

Ffyona's adventure will never win her any speed records. She took eleven years to make the trek, including several breaks to go back home and earn more travelling money.

Guinness credits American William Kunst with the fastest walk around the world. Kunst left his home in Minnesota in 1970 and set a blistering pace, arriving back at his starting point in a mere four years. Ffyona took nearly three times that long.

But then that's the whole pleasure of walking as an exercise: There's no big hurry.

Not satisfied with the response

Editor:

I recently received an answer from Assistant Deputy Minister, Jane Marlatt, regarding my letter to Anne Swarbrick, Minister of Culture, Tourism and Recreation about the TVO signal. I'm not sure what I had expected in return, but I definitely had my hopes set on an actual answer to my letter. I was sadly mistaken.

Well, I was told 97% of Ontario's population has access to TVO. Really? Does this mean having a 100% chance of the sun rising is news too? Well, so far the budget cuts have not affected our solar system to a great degree. And note: if the sun does expire, despite the quite formidable distance, we will all be notified in approximately 8 minutes in a clear, concise manner we'll all understand.

Which is more than I can say about this effort in futility. The "continued reviewing of options" for example. What does it mean? We are not asking the signal be extended to Deneb, so how many options can there be to mull over? Does the ministry actually know what it's doing? Or am I being naive perhaps? Do educate me...I'm all ears!

Despite this letter imparting absolutely no information, there was no less than two ministers, one MPP and one CEO for TVO notified via carbon copies. Now, if approximately 60 people wrote and our enterprising Assistant Deputy Minister sent 60 replies with the same cc's there ought to be 60 or so copies of that same lethargic form letter in each recipient's file? (However, NOT having wasted that paper may have left a pine tree with all its limbs intact and perchance kept it out of a wheelchair? And the cost out of the ministry budget).

"Thank you for your continuing support for TVOntario" (x 2). Is this being obtuse or derisive or what? Everyone "supports" TVO regardless of whether they watch it or not and we all know that too. Thanking me for being in support of something I's just been advised "financial constrains currently stand in the way of getting" is irrational. But thank you for thanking me.

A vapid form letter indicates I'm not considered worth the inconvenience of a proper answer. And for some reason I take exception to being treated like an imbecile by someone who is as obnoxious as her message is insipid. Then again, how many young people wrote? It's rather a pity they didn't even rate one of these form letters. (Kids...who cares?)

The saying goes, "If you can't dazzle them with brilliance, baffle them with B.S."

I'm baffled.

There are children without gardens

Editor:

Please accept the following letter as a rebuttal to Arthur Black's October 17 column entitled "Hope yet for the cosmetically challenged". I sincerely hope you will run this letter as it provides the necessary balance so lacking in Mr. Black's article. If you should choose to run it, I would appreciate it being entitled "Yes Mr. Black, there really are children without gardens."

Mr. Arthur "middle class, middle aged, white male" Black, shame on you! For as long as there have been human societies there have been people who "tell us what to think or say or do". In fact, it is one of the fundamental principles of society. Your short-sightedness regarding the "bandwagon" of political correctness is, quite frankly, repugnant. Western civilization is currently at a rather remarkable and critical juncture. PC is but one of a myriad of important facets of this period. Your diatribe regarding PC is yet another example of what is referred to as a Backlash.

Interestingly, you do not even mention backlash. Perhaps this was an honest oversight, however, I find it much more likely that you neglected to include the phenomenon in your litany because it would have reflected negatively on you. After all, your article was the acme of the poorly conceived cliche statements most often espoused by those members of society who feel most threatened by the PC movement - namely people such as yourself who feel it is their right to hurl epithets of questionable taste and intelligence at those, who traditionally, have been least capable of defending themselves.

In all fairness, your references to children's literature are somewhat defensible. Personally I think proponents of PC who attack historical literature are acting in a naive and impetuous manner. The overwhelming majority of these art works are not simply "stories" but rather allegories or parables. They contain strong moral undertones, the purpose of which is to cultivate societal values. These values must, however, be questioned in the light of late twentieth century societal values. This is, after all, the process by which we evolve, both individually and collectively.

Mr. Black I should like to offer you one caveat. The PC movement seeks to revitalize our society (and indeed the societies of the entire globe) so that we may be better prepared to meet the challenges of the twenty-first century. The aim of this revitalization is to cultivate two simple principles: mutual respect and understanding.

I ask you Mr. Black, do you feel comfortable when people from extreme southern Ontario refer to those of us living in more northern environs as hicks, hillbillies, red necks or inbreds? I suspect not. Respect and understanding must, of necessity, be extended to ALL segments of society, including morons like you - oh excuse me! cases of arrested development like you.

Return to Normandy

As Canadians prepare to remember those who fought and died in the defence of freedom, the memories of those who returned from the battlefields come alive with reminiscences of the their experiences in the war effort. Tony Samarillo of Carnarvon, the charter president of Minden Branch 636 of the Royal Canadian Legion was one of many who were a part of the D Day invasion. Over the years, Tony has kept those memories alive by returning to the site of the invasion on a number of occasions. We asked Tony and his wife Ruth share some of those memories, of the war and of their subsequent visits, with our readers.

Tony and his wife Ruth, seen here is a 1987 visit, are framed by the fortifications surrounding a German gun emplacement on the Normandy coast.

June 6, 1944

From the Normandy Beach at Bernieres-sur-Mer to the Port of Oldenburg, Germany, Anthony (Tony) Samarillo, then a sergeant in the 29th Royal Canadian Engineers, was on the front lines clearing mines and booby traps left behind by the retreating Germans and building bridges to speed the advance of the Allied forces.

"As I was landing on the beach with my platoon, I hesitated for a split second," Samarillo recalls. "I realized the water was deeper than I expected. The Master Sergeant, commander of the landing craft, gave me a boot and I plunged into the chilly water."

The rude introduction to the European theatre was quickly forgotten,..."Although I was damn mad at the master sergeant at the time," he recalls. There were other more crucial things to take his mind off the unceremonious send-off. Moment after he and his fellow engineers touched the French beach, the defending German army opened fire. Two of the 60 men under his command died as they made their way to shore. The unit was part of a second wave to hit the beach that day.

While the most dangerous part of his job, once a beach-head was secured, was the clearing of mines and booby traps, his job was also taken up with the construction of Bailey bridges. He still remembers the first bridge he built in support of the allied effort. "It was at Saint Contest, close to Caen, over the River Orne," he recalls. "I was not a combatant, I didn't shoot anyone....we were just there to build bridges." But of course, death was all around him. He remembers ministering to a dying German soldier at Saint Contest. "He asked me for some water and I gave it to him. He died shortly afterward."

Tony Samarillo and his grandson Giann stand before the Juno Beach memorial to the Allied forces who stormed ashore there some 50 years ago.

Samarillo and his platoon advanced across Normandy through Holland and Belgium to the edge of the Rhine River. Here his platoon erected one of the longest Bailey bridges used in the war. The floating span stretched 1845 feet and was nick-named the Blackfriars Bridge after a Thames River span in London.

While working on the bridge he was surprised to discover that his brothers Orlando and Albert were in the immediate area. Both were with the artillery and had been involved in the liberation of Italy. Their company provided covering fire for the engineers as they constructed the bridge. A fourth brother was also overseas. Jimmie was with the signal corps.

One of the pleasant memories Samarillo carries with him from the war is the warm reception the troops received as they marched across Europe. In Normandy, and Holland and Belgium, "The people were so very friendly. They helped us as best they could. And we shared what we could with them. Chocolate was a popular treat especially with the children." He has a particularly fond memory of arriving late at night in the village of Pays d'Auge where a group of nuns emerged from their convent with glasses of wine for the troops.

When the armistice was declared, on May 8, 1945, Samarillo was in Oldenburg, Germany.

Samarillo returned to Juno Beach in 1984 to participate in the fortieth anniversary of the D Day landings. His son Keith accompanied him on the trip. As he strode onto the beachs, his eyes filled with tears as he saw the a white house near the beach, the same structure which had stood there years before as he and his platoon waded ashore. The familiar landmark rekindled the memories of the death and destruction he witnessed and the terror felt by all the troops as they scrambled ashore in the face of enemy fire.

He returned again three years later, this time joined by his wife, Ruth. They toured the coast starting at the beautiful old seaport of Hon Fleur travelling west along the coast toward the D Day landing sites. They visited all the famous beaches in the area including: Sword at Ouistreham where the British landed; Juno at Courseulles, where the Canadian forces landed; Gold at Asnelles, another British landing site; and Omaha and Utah at St. Laurent and St. Martin de Varreville, where U.S. soldiers landed.

Many of the German bunkers were still in place and they had an opportunity to explore these relics. Some still held the heavy guns which were used to pound the invasion force as it neared the coast. Evidence of allied bombing could be seen near these bunkers as large craters marked the locations where the explosives had fallen. They stood by the curled barbed wire atop the cliffs between the Omaha and Utah beaches. These were the cliffs the American Rangers had to scale under murderous enemy fire. The losses were tremendous.

This visit also included a return to the white house on the beach. Used now as a summer home, the occupants noticed the couple taking photos and when they saw the Canadian lapel pins they were wearing. They were welcomed with open arms.

Earlier this year, Anthony returned again to the Normandy beaches, this time for the fiftieth anniversary ceremonies. Once again he was accompanied by his son Keith and also his grandson, five year old Gianni. While walking along the beach with Gianni, he was stopped and interviewed by a CTV crew covering the anniversary . Samarillo was also interviewed by a local paper. He attended a ceremony at the Abbaye aux Dames de Caen and was the recipient of the commemorative medal presented by the President of the Regional Council of Lower Normandy.

While attending the ceremonies June 6 at a Canadian Cemetery at Beny-Reviers, Samarillo was part of the colour party, sharing the honour with members of the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 1 from Baden Sollinger in West Germany. Among the other notables he met during the anniversary ceremonies was Prime Minister Jean Chretien.

In June 1988, the Memorial of Caen was opened. Construction of this project had taken almost two years. Started by the senator/mayor of the city of Caen, it is located on the northern fringe of the city and covers 37 acres. There the Samarillos saw the gallery of memorial stones, each inscribed with a message of peace and reconciliation in the languages of the forces involved in the liberation. The flags of the participating countries snap proudly in the breeze nearby. The memorial was built on the edge of a cliff over a former German underground command post, just a few kilometres from the assault beaches. It overlooks a park in the valley. Access is via a Bailey bridge. Samarillo notes, "This is not a war memorial, but rather a museum of peace. Anyone visiting the area should spend some time here to get a greater understanding of the events which took place." Their visit concluded with a moving commemoration event on the grounds of the memorial.

With his son Keith and Grandson Gianni, Tony Samarillo stands before the house that has become an enduring landmark for him on the Normandy Juno Beach.

Snowdon releases statement on land deal

by Andrew Milne

Snowdon municipal council has released a statement on its handling of the Gunn property land purchase.

The purchase of the property, transacted in early July, was brought up at the October 27 all-candidates meeting. The property — lot 21 concession 13 in Snowdon — is adjacent to the Lochlin municipal landfill site.

The question the candidates had faced at the meeting was as follows: is it true that council paid $85,000 for the property? And is it true the property had sold for $50,000 two days before?

The council's statement is that yes, this is essentially true, but that there are reasons.

Clerk-treasurer Ernie Hill told The Times last week that "we had no idea that the price that was paid to the owner was $50,000. All of this took place on a weekend, and I had no access to a registry."

The council says in their statement this week that municipal officials met with Country Wide Realty June 30, and that an asking price was established before the end of the day. Subsequently, on July 2, the township was contacted and informed that other potential purchasers were interested, and the township was asked to make an offer to purchase.

According to land office records, the deal was closed July 18. Hill confirms this.

The council also says in their statement, that a draft report released by their environmental planning consultants June 8 "identified existing and potential future environmental problems at the Lochlin landfill, which the township would be compelled to address under the Environmental Protection Act."

The purchase price of $85,000, says the statement, "pales in comparison with the estimated cost of the anticipated remedial work, which was estimated at a conservative level of $1 million."

The statement goes on to say that one only need review onsite clean-ups ordered by the provincial Ministry of Environment and Energy (MOEE) in Victoria County to arrive at that conclusion.

The statement also says that the council was not aware, prior to agreeing to purchase the property, of any dealings with the former property dealer, except for a request for a letter of compliance issued by the municipality in its comment on zoning and land use. "Any suggestions," it continues, "of improprieties on the part of Council, constitutes a scurrilous and slanderous misrepresentation of the facts. The present council has consistently acted in the best interests of the municipality."

Signs, parking meters stolen

Minden O.P.P. has received numerous complaints from political candidates in the past few weeks due to damage or theft of their election signs. The signs have been posted throughout the county at a great expense to the candidates. Minden O.P.P. wishes to inform the public that tampering with the signs could result in a charge of theft or public mishchief.

Minden detachment of the O.P.P. is investigating the theft of two parking meters, including the posts, from the main street of Haliburton. The meters were stolen from in front of the cenotaph on Highland Street on the night of October 21, 1994.

The value of the meters is approx $1,300.

If you have any information about this or any other crime, call Lindsay Crimestoppers at 1-800-563-TIPS (8477).

You will never be asked to reveal your identity or to testify in court. If your information leads to an arrest, Lindsay Crimestoppers will pay up to $1,000. in cash.

Corrections

The caption under the photo in the bottom left corner of the story on page 5 of the October 31 Times (re the Snowdon ratepayer's meeting) is incorrect.

The caption quoted Jim McPhail, pictured, as speaking in support of the current council. McPhail actually spoke in support of a another member of the audience speaking on the condition of Church Road. The quotation in the cutline came from another member of the audience.

Also: the geographical descriptions of wards four and five in the summary of candidates on page 19 of the same issue were reversed. Ward four is the Kennisis Lake area, while ward five is the Haliburton Lake area, and part of Redstone Lake.

education provided in Haliburton County makes the kids competitive in the workplace.

"We can't forget the basics either," he said. "There are a lot of issues and employment equity is going to be a tough one."

Kernohan said that complying with employment equity will take resources away from other areas. With constraints on hiring personnel, there wouldn't be funds to hire someone to do the necessary surveys to determine what cultural groups are represented in the county and the numbers so the proper policy and guidelines can be established.

"It will place more work onto the shoulders of the administration and the educators to fulfil the requirements of Queen's Park," he said. "These initiatives, while they're fine in themselves, take time away from the kids and stretch the available resources that much thinner," he said.

Kernohan has been a member of the board for about a year and a half. He was selected by the board from a group of about eight who applied to take over Marianne Wilson's seat when she moved out of the county. He was involved in the fight to expand Archie Stouffer Elementary School as opposed to building a junior high school in Haliburton.

That was Kernohan's first dealing with the board of education.

"Before that, I was the typical parent," Kernohan said. "I just more or less let the education system run itself and trusted it to do its job, up until the point where I felt they had made an error."

He said that he found the board was approachable and open to constructive public input. That was what prompted him to submit his resume when the opening came up.

Kernohan says he has enjoyed working on the board since January of 1993.

"It's very interesting and enjoyable," he said. "It takes a lot of time and commitment, but it's well worth it."

Environmental Impact Statement on the Concept for Disposal of Canada's Nuclear Fuel Waste

For the past 15 years, Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL), has researched the permanent disposal of nuclear fuel waste in the hard rock of the Canadian Shield. Ontario Hydro has provided technical assistance for the research and development of the deep disposal concept.

This month the Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) was submitted to the federal environmental assessment panel reviewing the concept. Copies of the EIS and the Summary may be found in many libraries across the country.

You have 9 months to study the documents and provide comments on their completeness to the panel. The panel will then decide whether to ask AECL for more information or to proceed to public hearings.

From November to March the Secretariat to the panel will hold a series of publicized open houses to encourage and assist you to participate in this important review.

Tyke A Monarchs win 2nd game

by Jerry Grozelle

Minden's tyke A Monarchs are on a roll, winning their second straight game on October 29.

The Monarchs played host to Beaverton edging the visitors 3-2 in a game filled with end to end action.

Kody Smith played another strong game in net for Minden, stopping the opposition on several good scoring opportunities, especially in the last three or four minutes of the game. During the late stages, Beaverton pulled out all the stops, trying unsuccessfully to get the equalizer.

Jon Petch opened the scoring for Minden with 45 seconds remaining in the first period. It was Petch's first marker, with David McGlade setting him up.

Sheri Walker's first goal at the 3:13 mark of the second put the Monarchs up by two goals. Aaron Keaney drew the assist on that marker.

Beaverton got on the scoreboard with 3:25 left in the second, but less than a minute later, Shawn Keaney scored for Minden to restore the two-goal advantage. Walker set that one up for her second point of the game.

When the buzzer sounded to end the middle period, Minden was in front by a 3-1 count.

Beaverton got one back in the third but that would be as close as the visitors would get as the Monarchs held on for the 3-2 win.

Novice Bs blank Bobcaygeon

A novice B hockey game in Bobcaygeon on Thursday evening saw the visiting Minden Monarchs blank their hosts 7-0. Teamwork and aggressive forechecking were the keys to Minden's victory.

The Monarchs struck early when Shawn Chapman made a perfect pass out front to Corry Harrison, who snapped it home for a 1-0 Minden lead just 1:05 into the game.

The combined effort of Taylor Lougheed, with a crisp pass to Mark Fisher, resulted in the second Minden marker. Fisher's quick shot found the mesh behind the Bobcaygeon goalie for a 2-0 advantage.

Defenceman David Williams kept the pressure up with a deep pass to Cory Simms, whose shot from the corner on a sharp angle found the mark. The first period ended with Minden in front by a 3-0 count.

The combination of Harrison and Chapman connected again in the second. Harrison got his second goal and Chapman notched assist number two. Later in the frame, James Bleakley spotted winger Andrew Bull in the clear. Bull took the pass and tucked the puck into the short side. With a minute left in the middle period, Kolt Smith scored an unassisted goal and Minden's lead was increased to 6-0 going into the third.

Minden struck again 10 seconds into the final frame. Chapman was the sniper, on an unassisted effort. That goal rounded out the game's scoring

Ryan Cole earned the shutout, in the Minden net. Chad Carpenter, Daryl Arbour and Brandon Davidson made Cole's job easier by keeping the opposition bottled up in its own end for much of the game. Darrin Brown proved to be a thorn in Bobcaygeon's side throughout the game. He intercep gressive checking kept the opposition players on their toes.

The victory was the team's first of the season. It was also Cole's first-ever shutout.

Skokie Skaters: Coach Jane Symons (centre) poses with Lindsay Harpley (left), and Jasmine Wilson of the Minden skating club. Harpley placed third in the Pre-Juvenile "B" Ladies division Flight 4 qualifying event at the October 29-30 Skokie Skate in Huntsville. Wilson placed second in the Pre-Juvenile "A" Ladies division, Flight 2 qualifying event, and went on to the gold in the final event. Also skating for the club, Tristan Pawluch placed third in the Pre-Novice Test Men's event, and Andrea Pawluch placed second in the Senior Ladies Test event.

Minden Men's Hockey

Nesbitt, Lougheed score four each

by Jerry Grozelle

HARTWICK 6, KDD 2

Kountry Double D may have scored first, but Hartwick Construction snipers responded with five in a row on the way to a 6-2 win in the first of three Minden Men's Hockey Association games on October 31.

Peter Alore potted the first goal of the game, from Ben Manuge.

Before the first half was over, Hartwick had taken a 3-1 lead on a pair of goals by Ivan Ingram and a single from Andrew Burk. Jason Stamp and Gord Wood had two assists apiece, with Bruce Pettes and Clarke Craig picking up one assist each.

The Hartwick assault continued into the second half with two more before KDD got its second marker. Hartwick rounded out the game's scoring, ending it with the 6-2 victory.

Burk added two more to his total, rounding out the hat trick, and Glen Hall scored one. Stamp got two more assists (for a total of four); Pettes added two more (for three on the game); and a single helper went to Ingram.

Steve Stewart scored the lone KDD goal of the second half, from Stevenson and John Hewson.

STAMP 7, WESTSIDE 4

The evening's second game was a seesaw battle into the second half, with Sid Stamp Fuels playing catch-up all the way. Westside had a one-goal lead three times before the Stamp crew notched three in a row to change the pace of the game. Westside notched one to cut the Stamp lead to 5-4, but two unanswered goals gave Stamp the 7-4 win.

Scott Nesbitt scored four goals for the Stamp crew, including the three in a row that put his team in front for the first time in the game. Nesbitt also assisted on one goal. Boomer Stamp, Gary Harrison and Greg Hurle added a goal each to the winning tally. Boomer Stamp and Trini Elias had three assists each; Bern Berry and Tom Miscio notched two each and Dave Dollo had one.

Craig Crowe scored twice for the Westside team. Scott Hamilton notched a goal and two assists and Dave Ross had a goal and one helper. Single assists for the Westside squad went to Harold Cowan, Dave Pettes, Monty Miscio, Paul Walker and Andy Campbell.

HOME 9, TIMES 0

Game three was a blow-out, with Home Hardware romping to a 9-0 victory over The Times.

Home Hardware was ahead 3-0 at the half, doubling its output in the second period.

Lawrence Lougheed and Dave Hartwick paced the Home attack. Lougheed scored four goals and added two assists, while Hartwick netted three goals and added four assists. Kent Taylor and Wyatt Nesbitt had one goal and one assist each. Kim Colliss contributed four assists to the win and John Ballantyne had a pair.

Manvers rebounds to down Bantam Bs 4-2

by Jerry Grozelle

Jason Horsley opened the scoring for the Minden bantam B Monarchs in Minden on October 29. But before the first period was over, the visiting Manvers team notched two quick goals to end the frame with a 2-1 lead. Jason Kasepchuk assisted on Horsley's goal.

Each team scored once in the middle period and Manvers held onto a one-goal lead. Kirk Smith was the Minden marksman, with Matt Cheeseman and Rod Upton assisting.

The visitors added one unanswered goal in the third period to down the Monarchs 4-2.

The bantam B team was scheduled to play two games this past weekend. The next home game will be this Saturday, November 12 at 6 p.m. against Cannington.

Peewee action: The Dollo's IGA peewees had a tough time against Fenelon Falls last week, giving up a 12-2 decision to the visitors. The game wasn't without its highlights for the home team though. The Monarchs are seen here giving the Fenelon goalie a workout.

Atom A Monarchs defeat Cannington by 7-1 score

by Jerry Grozelle

Barry Shaw, coach of the Minden Monarch atom A hockey team, was pleased with his team's performance on October 29. The Monarchs played host to Cannington, skating to a 7-1 victory over the visitors.

"We played great," Shaw said. "Both lines were flying. The defence moved the puck quickly out of our end and our goalie Phillip Neville had a great game."

The Monarchs took a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Josh Shaw (unassisted) and Jamie Colliss (from Shaw).

Another unassisted marker by Shaw two and a half minutes into the second period put the Monarchs up 3-0.

Cannington scored its lone goal four minutes into the second. But before the period was over, Shaw notched his third of the game and Mark Hamilton netted one for a 5-1 lead going into the third. Both of those markers were unassisted.

Shaw added two more unanswered goals in the third for a game total of five. Jonathan Horsley and Colliss assisted on the third-period goals.

Coach Shaw wasn't as pleased about the game the following evening in Bobcaygeon.

"It was our worst game of the season," he said. "The only bright spot was the play of goalie Jeremy Davis."

The Minden boys came out on the short end of a 3-0 score in Bobcaygeon.

HHSS football teams toppled in Peterborough

by Jerry Grozelle

Both of Haliburton High School's football teams ran into some tough opposition in Kawartha championship action in Peterborough last week.

The senior Redmen were edged 24-20 by the tenacious Thomas A. Stewart Griffins. The Redmen found themselves behind by two touch downs in the first quarter when the Griffins scored one on a punt return and another on an interception.

"We were down 14-0 before we knew what happened," said Redmen senior coach Gary Brohman.

Haliburton started its come-back when Mark Morissette scored on an option pass from Peter Brohman. TASS picked up a single on a missed field goal attempt and at the half the Griffins led 15-7.

Haliburton gave up a safety touch and another single in the third quarter but rebounded with a touch down. Brohman scored on a 25-yard run. The convert was missed and at the end of the third, TASS led 18-13.

Midway through the fourth quarter Kevin Morissette passed to his brother Mark, who scored to give Haliburton a 19-18 edge. The convert was good and the Redmen were up 20-18.

The Griffins staged a 70-yard march late in the fourth quarter, culminating in a touch down to win the game.

"It was high school football at its best," said coach Brohman. "It was really exciting."

Brohman said that everybody on his team played well. He gave special credit to the players whose last season of high school football has come to an end, saying they all played exceptionally well. Players like the Morissette brothers, Garwood Thomas, Mark Stamp, Peter Brohman and Anthony Mestroni were commended for their efforts.

Juniors

Although the score was a wider margin than the senior contest, the junior Redmen were in the thick of the battle until the dying minutes of the Kawartha championship game against the Crestwood Mustangs.

Half way through the fourth quarter Crestwood held a slim 21-20 lead. But the Redmen ran out of steam and the Mustangs went on to win by a 36-20 score.

"We had about seven guys playing both ways and they (the Mustangs) had 12 guys on offense, 12 guys on defense and 12 guys on specialty teams," said junior Redmen coach Bruce Griffith.

Mike Bradley scored all three of Haliburton's touch downs.

"Everyone played well," Griffith said. "But they were a big, strong team and they played better."

Justin Rowden had a key interception in the second quarter that stopped Crestwood march and temporarily turned the game around for the Redmen. Bill Dovell made an interception in the third quarter and caught two passes that set up a touchdown. Jeremy Townsend came close to scoring a touchdown, but he was tripped up by the last Crestwood man between him and the goal line.

"It was a tough game. We played as well as we could," Griffith said. "There wasn't anything we could have done better."

Laxton, Digby and Longford reeve candidates

Macklem, Wessell profiles

by Jerry Grozelle

John Macklem

What is John Macklem's platform in his bid to be the reeve of Laxton, Digby and Longford?

"Basically, stable government," he said. "We've had an excellent term that I've been a party to. I'm very proud of what reeve Horton, the other councillors and myself have been able to accomplish."

Macklem said the assets of the township have been looked after very well. An almost new grader has been purchased, the old school has been purchased and renovated to include the township office, council chambers and a new library facility. Infrastructure funds were used to pay two-thirds of the cost of re-roofing the facility and to help pay for an addition to the community centre. A new dump truck is on order and is expected to be delivered soon.

On top of all that, the municipality has been able to increase its reserves over the past three years.

"Fiscal management is the watch word," Macklem said, adding that more of the same is to be expected. "I see for the next three years, we're going to try again to keep the lid on tax increases. That's going to be a challenge because of all the government cutbacks. The real challenge over the next three years will be manoeuvring through the morass of changes that are going to come.

"We're losing grants on every front. Assessment is barely stable due to the number of business closings that have gone on. It's going to be tough for us to raise the same dollars because of that."

Macklem has been a councillor in LDL for the past three years, his first term in municipal politics.

It appears that a small surplus of funds will be realized at the end of 1994, adding to the municipality's reserves.

Macklem said he thinks a strong voice is needed at the county level since the needs of the north Victoria townships are different from those in the southern part of the county.

Ingram Wessell

Ingram Wessell says there aren't any major issues on which he is basing his campaign for reeve of Laxton, Digby and Longford.

One of the things he would like to change if he is elected is to switch the times of council meetings back to the evening again. He said he was upset when the meetings were changed to the morning because most people who wanted to attend a meeting had to take a day off work to do so.

"I think it was very unfair to the ratepayers," he said. "Anybody from the city, or even from our own area, had to lose a day's work if they had a problem to take to council."

Wessell said he was very disappointed when the council of the day allowed the park at Elliot's Falls be virtually shut down by the Ministry of Natural Resources. He approached council and offered to repair the road if council would agree to maintain the park's washroom facilities, keep the grass cut and pick up the garbage.

"I have to admit that (John) Macklem was the only one in favour of what I was doing," Wessell said. (Macklem is running against Wessell for the position of reeve of Laxton, Digby and Longford.)

"I'm a roads man," Wessell said. "I feel that the roads are something that everybody makes use of. Some of the people make use of the recreation centre and some of the people make use of the halls. But the roads are something that everybody makes use of. I think there should be more attention paid to the roads. Personally, I feel that the roads have slipped in the last three years, and I've talked to ratepayers who've said the same thing.

"I have no axe to grind," Wessell said. "I'd like to represent the people of Laxton, Digby and Longford. It's a pretty nice municipality, I think. It's a nice place to live."

Wessell served as reeve of LDL the term before last (1988-'91). He also has experience as a councillor in Lutterworth Township (1973-'76).

Meet Somerville's deputy-reeve candidates

Carr, MacDonald compete for deputy-reeve of Somerville

by Jerry Grozelle

Gord Carr

"After nine years on council it's either time to step up or get out of the way and let somebody else do it," said Gord Carr, one of two people vying for the deputy-reeve's seat of Somerville Township.

Carr said that changes at the county level helped him decide to run for the higher post. Now that the deputy-reeve of Somerville Township no longer has a seat on county council, Carr says he would have time to serve the people in that capacity.

"As far as big issues, there's really nothing," Carr said. "I just hope I can serve the people again as deputy-reeve the same as I have as councillor. I feel that I have a fair bit of knowledge of how municipal work is done and I feel I could be an asset to the people of Somerville."

Carr says the township has taken advantage of infrastructure funding to add a fire hall to the old school/library building in Burnt River. Next year, renovations to the Kinmount Community Centre will be done.

"This is going to bring some employment to the township," he said. "It will make our community centre more attractive to people wanting to rent it and make use of it."

Carr is confident that he is capable of taking on the job of deputy-reeve.

"I take a fair bit of flak about not being a resident of the township (he lives in Fenelon Falls). But, as John Eakins told me the night he supported my nomination, that all the while he was a councillor and a mayor in Lindsay, he was not a resident. If your interests are with the people you represent, it really doesn't matter where you live."

On the matter of taxes, Carr said: "I think our taxes are about to everyone's limit. With the downloading of the upper tier governments -- county level and provincial -- we have to be able to do more with less. As far as I'm concerned, our people have come to just about the extent of what they can pay for taxes. That's one of the most important things we have to keep in mind when we are planning our budget. You try not to cut services but if people can't afford to pay any more, what other choice do you have?"

Carr says he has had a good working relationship with the present council and he's sure he can do the same with whoever is elected to council on November 14.

Jack MacDonald

Taxes are the main issue in Jack MacDonald's campaign for deputy-reeve of Somerville Township. Over the past three years, Somerville has held the line on taxes, with zero increases two years and a one per cent increase last year.

"I'd like to see taxes kept at a zero increase or lower," MacDonald said. "providing it doesn't jeopardize the roads and so on.

"It's not us (causing taxes to increase), it's the board of education. They're hitting five and six per cent. What really irks me is it's just in Victoria County. I know of an area where the taxes haven't increased -- including education, county... anything -- in three years, and God knows how long before that. If everybody else can do it, we can. We're as smart as the rest of them."

MacDonald says the 1994 increase would have been under zero if the township hadn't bought a grader this year. The grader was a big issue with Somerville council. The three members of council outnumbered MacDonald and reeve John Huke in a vote to decide whether or not to buy a grader to replace the old one or make other arrangements. MacDonald doesn't plan to let go of that issue until the current campaign is over. His opponent for deputy-reeve of the township is Gord Carr, who was one of the councillors who voted yes to the grader purchase.

"After it's all over, we'll let sleeping dogs lie," MacDonald said.

The new sewage treatment system in Coboconk is another issue that MacDonald expects to see more of in the future.

MacDonald said there are two or three things he is planning to do if he is elected, but he wouldn't elaborate, pending the outcome of the election.

"Keeping taxes down is my main goal," MacDonald said, adding, "I feel that some decision has definitely got to be made on the Four Mile Lake boat ramp. A lot of people have been backing their boats in when the children's swimming lessons are being held there."

MacDonald said there have been a couple of close calls, where children could have been injured.

The deputy-reeve candidate says he has accomplished most of what he set out to do when he was elected to Somerville council. He considers the fiscal restraint that has been demonstrated by council; the unrelenting appeal to the board of education to curb its spending; a strong commitment to fairness and respect for those who appear before council; a commitment to the best interest of the taxpayers of Somerville Township; the tendering of services and purchases of more than $1,000; and decision making only after listening to all arguments on any issue, as some of the achievements he has seen accomplished over the past three years.

He still feels that the people of Somerville Township would be best served by people who are either seasonal or permanent residents of the township. But he admits that only the voters can fulfil that goal for him.

About half of MacDonald's term in office was served as deputy-reeve. He stepped up when Sue Douglas was forced to retire for health reasons.

Meet the Laxton, Digby and Longford deputy-reeve candidates

Allen offers an alternative, Riordon wants to continue "good job"

Tom Allen

Tom allen isn't running for the deputy-reeve's seat of Laxton, Digby and Longford because he's unhappy with the job council has done over the past term.

"They've done a good job," he admits. "I'm challenging because I think every candidate needs a challenge. Basically, I'm running with the same type of platform as they are -- a balanced budget and keeping up the things that have been going on."

Allen said he would like to see some improvement with the roads network.

"It's a long, ongoing project. We have a lot of roads that were taken over that were not up to standard and I'd like to see these gradually worked into the system," he said. "But that will take a lot of money and we have to spend our money wisely."

Keeping up with the recycling program would also be high on Allen's list of priorities.

Allen served as a councillor for LDL during the 1988-'91 term. That was his first experience on council. He was one of the casualties when the electorate decided on a clean slate in the last election.

"I was asked by quite a few voters to run against Mike Riordon," Allen said.

Tourism is important to the economy of Laxton, Digby and Longford and Allen said he would like to see the municipality become more involved in the promotion of the area to draw in tourists.

"Most people in this area are dependent in one way or another on tourism dollars for their survival," he said.

Supporting different events to encourage tourists to come to the area year-round is something that he says has been lacking. Every opportunity to bring tourists to the area should be explored, the deputy-reeve candidate says. He cited the sled dog races, the horse pull and the western weekend as good examples that could be expanded upon.

"We need more things going on in the winter time," he said. "I'm sure there are a lot of people out there who have ideas; they just need a catalyst."

Allen said he would like to see "everyone exercise his or her franchise and get out there and vote."

Mike Riordon

Mike Riordon has a reputation for speaking out on issues in which he believes. He says he's not going to change.

"If I believe in something, I fight for it," he said. "I can't be intimidated or bullied. I hope my honesty and being up front with people will put me in good stead."

Riordon says he believes the current council has done a really good job.

"We've spent a lot of money," Riordon admits. "but we have more in our reserve accounts than we've ever had before and we haven't raised the taxes in the last three years."

Riordon is reluctant to take credit for anything that has been done by council.

"I like to believe that we did it as a team," he said.

Riordon said that he has served under three different reeves and the current council has accomplished more than any other council.

"I'm not saying that they got along any better, but we worked as a team and we accomplished an awful lot. I think a lot of credit should go to all of the present council and I'm very sorry to see that three of them aren't running again," Riordon said. "Even if John (Macklem) and I get elected, that's only two experienced people and three new ones."

Riordon said if he is elected he would like to see the roads kept in good condition.

"Our roads are in the best shape they've ever been," he said. "I hope they will stay that way, whether I get elected or not."

Riordon said he would be happy to see things go along as they have for the past three years. Holding the line on taxes will be a priority for Riordon if he is elected. But, he admits it will be a challenge in the face of provincial government cutbacks.

"It's a pretty hard thing to say that we won't raise the taxes, the way our economy is and the way the government is cutting our grants down," he said. "We've been taking advantage of the grants that are available. The infrastructure has helped us a lot and, assuming I'm elected, we'll still take advantage of all the grants the government is handing out."

The current council has not been exempt from criticism, but Riordon finds it easy to defend council's actions.

"I know we've been criticised for spending so much money -- like buying the grader," he said "But everything that we've done has been for the betterment of the township."

Riordon is the most experienced of any of the candidates running for council in Laxton, Digby and Longford. He has been a member of LDL council for 16 of the last 19 years, a dozen of those years as deputy-reeve.

"I've always been honest with the taxpayers," Riordon said. "They might not like the answer I give them, but it'll be an honest answer."

Riordon says he's always been community minded and he is dedicated to providing recreational opportunities for kids.

Now that he is retired, Riordon says he has more time to devote to his duties as deputy-reeve and on the various committees.

Meet the Lutterworth candidates

McMahon running for second term as Warden

by Jack Brezina and Andrew Milne

The Times spoke to each of the candidates in the Lutterworth municipal elections about their backgrounds and what they felt are the central issues of the election. Brief profiles follow, arranged by office and alphabetically by surname.

Reeve

One of three reeves in the county to be acclaimed to office, Jim McMahon of Lutterworth is looking forward to the next three years in office. The Minden feed store operator has served the last two terms as deputy reeve of Lutterworth. He is also competing his term as Warden of the county.

The position of Warden is one he plans to go after again when the dust settles following the municipal election. While there have been a number of occasions in Haliburton County's history when a warden served two or more consecutive terms, it has not occurred in the past 50 years. The current Warden of Peterborough County is completing a three year term.

McMahon explains his interest in another term as head of the county government: "To do the job right, a warden needs more than one year in the post," he commented. "That is why I am declaring my intent early." McMahon said the county has made some major gains in the past year, including the hiring of a clerk-treasurer, a considerable savings, the installation of a computer system which links the various departments, a soon to be introduced centralized payroll system, and the hiring of a human resources manager to assist the county in its negotiations process.

"I have had a great deal of support from various people to seeking a second term," the Warden commented. "Running the county is like running a business or a corporation. There is some need for stability and continuity at the top if it is to progress." He said the single year term does not provide the warden with enough time to plan and see plans through to the finish.

He admits that the county has come through some rough financial times this year. The reserves were depleted over the past few years to reduce the tax burden. This has left little in the way of a cushion for the emergency expenditures. However, McMahon notes this year's expenditure are right on target with the budget and he does not expect an over-run in expenditure. This coupled with reduced spending on planning and waste management plus other efficencies, should bring the county back into a comfortable position next year.

Earlier this year, McMahon floated a proposal at a council meeting that the county consider constructing a new administration building. His idea has run into some opposition from various quarters from individuals who feel the county's financial position is not strong enough to carry the extra cost. McMahon's proposal involved the use of infrastructure dollars being provided by the federal and provincial governments and debenturing the county's one-third share. He also suggested the sale of the existing property. The fact that space within the new building could be leased to other community services, such as the OPP, would make the idea economically feasible, he said.

"The present county building is cramped and energy inefficient," McMahon stated. He said the building on Newcastle street would need major renovations if it is to continue to serve for the coming years.

"Do we throw good money after bad or start over?" he asked.

The Warden also noted that to accommodate the expanded social services department, the council has been moved out of its chambers.The council currently meets at the Minden Community Centre.

Commenting on the opposition to his idea, McMahon says it is time for county councillors to think on a county-wide basis. He notes this not only applies to the building proposal, but to restructuring. "Either we can undertake the restructuring ourselves and create a system which reflects our intentions or we can wait and have it imposed on us by the province. One thing is certain, we can not go on the way things are....change is coming." McMahon suggested there are savings to be realized if townships and the county pooled resources. For example, he said there could be saving if all the roads departments worked co-operatively or if insurance was purchased on a county-wide basis.

McMahon said he was disappointed with the move by the county council to hire a road engineer. He claims the expertise was not needed at this time as new road construction will not occur before next spring.

Referring to his home township, he said Lutterworth has been well-run and at the moment has no debt. There was a zero per cent increase in the municipal budget this year. He expects the same for the coming term. "We are fortunate in having excellent staff at the municipal office," he stated.

Meet the Lutterworth candidates

New blood in the running for councillor positions

(from page 24)

Deputy-Reeve

Former councillor Lisa Mercer ran unopposed for election to the post of deputy reeve and has thus been acclaimed.

Mercer has been a councillor in Lutterworth since 1985. In addition to her work in Lutterworth she sits on the acting health services board.

Of her decision to run for deputy reeve, Mercer says, "I felt that it was time to move a little further ahead and try and get involved in some of the county issues that are happening right now... We've got a lot of provincial cutbacks and provincial mandates to follow right now, and hopefully we can come up with some stuff that will work within the monies that we're given."

Mercer also says that she feels Lutterworth should look seriously into developing its own official plan, particularly in light of the province's insistence on them.

Says Mercer, "If that (provincial policy) is going to hinder our development, I think it's something we really seriously need to entertain."

Councillors

There are four people running for the three councillor positions in Lutterworth. They are Heather Hope, Paul Pilon, Bill Valentine, and Mike Wahlroth. Valentine is an incumbent.

Hope worked for CNCP telecommunications (now Unitel) for 10 years as a financial revenue accountant before coming to the Lutterworth area in 1988. She says she had wanted to run in the last election but "the three councillors we had in then were all doing a super job, and it's been running really smooth."

"I just figured this time," she continues, "with two of them moving up, now is the time to jump in. I hope to keep it running as smoothly as it has been over the last few years. I don't think there's been anything at all wrong. They did a fantastic job."

Pilon has worked in real estate for the last eight years. He also ran for councillor in the last election.

Pilon says he is running for councillor for a number of reasons. Among them, he says he hopes to "enhance the working relationships with neighbouring townships."

"I believe it's already being done," he says, "but there's always room for improvement in that too."

He also says that, "being in real estate we are certainly in touch with disgruntlement... We see cottagers, and being residents we see side of the road."

Valentine is the only incumbent running for a councillor's position. He has been on council on and off for the last 20 years, and has twice served as reeve.

Says Valentine, "I've always served to the best of my ability. I've taught half of the people in Lutterworth anyway — either I've taught them or my wife did. If I'm re-elected I sure as heck am going to continue to give it my best shot."

Of Lutterworth, Valentine says, "We're in perfect shape. We don't owe any money. We have an excellent staff."

Wahlroth has never previously run for public office, though he has been involved in the Lion's Club and has served as president on a lake association.

He says he is running because, "I love the area. I've been here all my life. My grandmother was born on a farm on East Moore Lake. I don't want to see someone come along and mess it up. And if I'm not there to help protect it, I don't have anything to say about it."

Trustee

Two people are running for the position of school board trustee for Lutterworth. They are John Lynch and Cheryl Murdoch. Murdoch is the incumbent.

Lynch has never previously run for public office. He worked in real estate for around 10 years, but is no longer involved in that and now describes himself as self-employed.

"I think it's time for a change," says Lynch. "New blood is needed in the system."

"Basically," he continues, "I think the school board has to be accountable to the voters. They're sort of selling a product as far as the students go. But they're also responsible to the ones who put them in there. I feel that if the township and the school board work together they can hopefully keep the taxes down."

Murdoch has been on the board for 16 years, is a member of the Legion and vice-president of the curling club. She has worked as a teacher, and now owns and operates Murdoch Rentals.

"The key thing," she says, "is to maintain the quality of education. I think we have an excellent system, for a small system," continues Murdoch. "The trick is to maintain that quality with reduced funding. It seems to me every time we turn around that's what we're looking at. There again, you have to balance the financial part of it with the quality of education."

Meet the Snowdon candidates

Fire protection, openness, municipal building on agenda

Reeve

Two candidates are running for reeve: Russ Duhaime and George Simmons. Simmons is the incumbent.

Duhaime was formerly the managing editor of The Minden Times, and held this position for six years (until running for the reeve position) and has lived in the area for eight years. He has never run for public office before, and currently runs a photography studio.

Duhaime has a rather long, rather specific list of complaints about the performance of Simmons, and he says he can do better.

Duhaime says he is running "largely because of the level of disagreement at the county council level."

"All around," says Duhaime, "people have had a hard time coming to decisions on most issues. I thought it was interesting that (Anson, Hindon and Minden reeve) Bern Berry noted at this past county council meeting that this county council has had more recorded votes than any county council in history. And it's true. And it's largely because people have a hard time getting along. And the reeve of Snowdon township makes it that much harder. He can't get along with anyone. It makes it hard for anything to get accomplished when you have someone of his demeanour stirring up the pot at every opportunity."

Duhaime says a more diplomatic approach is particularly important for a township like Snowdon.

"We rely on our surrounding municipalities for so many things," says Duhaime. "We need them. If they start cutting off our fire protection for example because of a conflict between the reeve of one municipality and the reeve of another municipality, that hurts everyone."

Duhaime is also critical of his opponent's support for reinstating the county management committee — a committee of the ten reeves at the county level. Duhaime says that, in working for The Times, he was constantly running up against the policy that the meetings were closed to the public. That, he says, is not a good thing, because important business is done in those meetings, and the ratepayers of the county have a right to know what goes on.

Duhaime also says that the upcoming provincial Bill 163, which will set standards for when county and municipal governments can go to closed meetings, cannot be expected to prevent this from happening again. Says Duhaime, "There were certain standards as to when you could and couldn't go into a closed meeting prior to this, and that was basically ignored."

He isn't too happy with the level of openness at the county level in the past year either.

"County council had a consultant come in to do the infamous Wace study," says Duhaime. "It was an investigation partially into amalgamation, partially into relocation of the county office, and partially into staffing and ways to save money at the county level. Months of meetings were held in regard to that. All of them were closed."

Duhaime says that if he is elected and finds himself in a county council friendly to the idea of closed management committee meetings, "I would fight it and fight it as much as I could."

Duhaime also feels that Snowdon council should go to more trouble informing the public and soliciting decisions from them before enacting legislation.

Says Duhaime, "In the last year we were hit with a surprise tax hike. We were hit with a dump closure. And we were hit by surprise by the cancellation of our fire agreement with Somerville Township."

Finally, Duhaime is critical of the decision at the last Snowdon council meeting on November 3, accepting a tender for $3,750 for repairs to a building to be used for a municipal office.

"My feeling in regard to that," he says, "is it's not wise spending at this time — if the municipality can't afford to properly maintain roads, if it cannot afford to keep the dump open an extra day every week."

Incumbent Snowdon reeve Simmons has served as Warden at the county level. He works at the Bark Lake Leadership Centre near Irondale.

Simmons says he supports reinstating the management committee because "there has to be someone in the governing body [giving] direction for the county."

"From the last three years," he continues, "you've had so many split votes [because] there's been no direction for the county."

He also says, however, that he doesn't feel the meetings should be closed any more.

Among the things he feels should be handled by a management committee is fire protection.

"You've got to start looking to see what would be better done at the municipal level and what by the county level," he says.

Simmons also defends his record at the county level.

"I can get along with anyone," he says.

Furthermore, he says, if he was so hard to get along with, why did they elect him warden?

And he says the meetings on the Wace report were closed because they dealt with matters involving personnel and property, which are always discussed in closed session (Duhaime contests this, saying that yes, some of them did, but that matters important to everyone — such as the relocation of the county building, really should be discussed in public).

Simmons also criticized the provisions for disclosure in upcoming provincial Bill 163. The provisions require that persons elected to the post make statements about their financial debts and holdings, including property owned, mortgages held, loans outstanding and the like. These statements (which will not include actual dollar amounts) would then be made available to the public. The idea, says the provincial Ministry of Municipal Affairs (MMA), is to prevent conflict of interest in local government. The rationale is to allow the public to decide for itself from the information if elected officials are in conflict in any decisions they may be making.

The Times spoke to each of the candidates in the Snowdon municipal elections. Profiles are arranged by office and alphabetically by surname. Profiles by Andrew Milne

But Simmons says he is uncomfortable with the idea that anyone can just walk in off the street and request his file. He also says he feels the legislation creates a double standard — that private citizens get more protection of their privacy than elected officials. And he doesn't seem to feel that holding public office should mean he forgoes that privilege.

"In rural Canada," he says, "you're doing it in all honesty for the community and the municipalities. And now they're putting in one more thing that says: boy would you want to be a reeve or a councillor or whatever?"

Deputy Reeve

Incumbent Dwain Wruth was unopposed at the closing of nominations, and has been acclaimed to the position.

Wruth has been on council 17 years, has been deputy reeve for nine years, and is a self-employed farmer. He says the single most important issue facing Snowdon right now is "survival".

He explains this saying that with cutbacks in grants from higher levels of government, it's a matter of "keeping your head above water."

Of the decision to renovate the Gunn property as new municipal offices (see reeve coverage above), Wruth says, "I don't see any problem with that... We're working for the good of the municipality. We've got guys right now working in basements. And for the sake of our equipment — computers, typewriters and all that stuff — the quicker we can get them out of that dampness the better. We'd be saving money in the end."

Councillors

Six candidates are running for the three councillor positions on Snowdon council. They are Trudy Jordan, Raymond Lymer, Ross Rigney, Janet Swanton, Richard Thompson, and Frank Woolley. Lymer is the only incumbent.

Swanton could not be reached prior to publication.

Jordan has never run for public office before. She has been in the area four years and works as a dietary aid cook at Crescent Care retirement home.

"I see that there is a need to try and improve our fire protection," says Jordan.

"And not just in our area (Highland Junction)," she continues. "I'm sure there are other areas too."

Jordan also says she knows there is more to council than this issue.

"All issues are equally important," she says.

Lymer, the only incumbent councillor running for re-election, has owned land in the area 28 years, and was a seasonal resident until a few years ago. He has now moved up here permanently and attended council meetings for three years before winning his seat three years ago. He is retired from General Motors after 35 years with that company.

Says Lymer, "I'd like to keep Snowdon the way it is. I'd like to keep Snowdon as unique as it is. However, I've got to plan ahead. I've got to look at the essential services to keep Snowdon viable and moving ahead."

Lymer also says he would rather that Snowdon not amalgamate with other municipalities, but that essential services such as fire and ambulance services be amalgamated at the county level.

Stanhope all-candidates meeting

Ice and water rescue, road maintenance discussed

by Andrew Milne

The October 29 Stanhope all-candidates' meeting was dominated by questions on pay raises, ice and water rescue, and road maintenance.

The first question the ten candidates who showed up for the meeting faced was on whether they could assure the ratepayers they wouldn't vote themselves a raise as soon as they got in office.

"It's a three-year contract," said the first member of the audience to ask a question. "Sometimes in the past they've said now is a good time to consider this, and we'll give ourselves a raise for the next three years... Now I would hope that nobody would think of doing that. I would think that if you aren't happy (with the pay), don't go for the job. You know what the pay is. You know what the long hours are and the many meetings. What's your feeling about that ladies and gentlemen?"

All candidates were willing to respond. And the answer, in every case was no, they would not be voting themselves a raise.

Incumbent reeve Fred Gardner did, however, say that one cannot go without voting for raises indefinitely.

"I would not be in favour of an increase during the three year term" said Gardner. "But one thing I put to you: where are the people going to come from to give up so much time in the future if that just keeps at a standard level? Somewhere it has to change."

According to municipal clerk Gerald Bain, the last time the council had a raise was around four years ago, just prior to the last election in 1991.

And trustee candidate Leroy Eager said that for their part the trustees cannot vote themselves a raise, as pay rates have to be set by the outgoing board. The last board did not vote for a raise.

Following this, the candidates for the various council positions — Gardner in particular — found themselves facing a series of questions about ice and water rescue.

The history of the ice and water rescue issue goes back to July 1990, when a Port Colborne volunteer firefighter drowned during a rescue attempt. The Ministry of Labour investigated the incident and charged the fire chief and deputy fire chief on the basis of the Occupational Health and Safety Act — in particular for failing to provide appropriate training and take appropriate precautions.

The Ministry lost the case, but Stanhope council passed a resolution on August 12, 1992, barring the fire department from participating in rescues on ice or water.

Answering the ratepayer's question at the meeting October 29, Gardner said his position on the issue is still that the problem of liability makes it too much of a risk for the department to participate in the rescues.

"I appreciate... the dedication of all 23 members of our firefighters," said Gardner, "But I also have the responsibility of this township's place in that and the liability that if we let our fellows go into a place and they're at peril, and God forbid we ever lose one... because we haven't had the proper training and we haven't properly equipped them... I would agree to it if all of those things can be done at not an astronomical cost to this township."

Candidate for councillor Carol Moffat says it is a simple matter for the fire department to do the rescues, providing the proper provisions are made.

"Yes there are liabilities involved," said Moffat, "but, as with any risky situation, the fire department goes in and... they have a standard operating procedure or policy where they say 'we go to this thing, we do steps one through ten or nine' or whatever they are. The Ministry of Labour, to avoid lawsuits and liability, only requires that a standard operating guideline be implemented for any kind of emergency rescue. Ice and water rescue would be no different."

And Moffat says the costs needn't be exorbitant, since the only really pressing need is that the fire department be able to do land based rescues, which require minimal equipment and training. Said Moffat, "There are three levels of ice and water rescue. The first one is land based, where they can throw a stick, call instructions, and use the hose with a cap on the end (or) an extension ladder. The second one is vessel, where you would load the boat... The third one is actual ice and water immersion. It involves immersion suits... We do not have a need in this township... for guys to have zodiac boats and hydrofoils and immersion suits."

The way things are now, continued Moffat, if you had an automobile accident and happened to land in four feet of water at the shore of a body of water, the fire department isn't supposed to help you.

Moffat has worked as a reporter (for both The Minden Times and The Toronto Star), and researched the issue several years ago in that capacity.

And Gardner's opponent Jock Mavor says he fully supports the idea of the department doing the rescues.

"My son is a firefighter..." said Mavor. "I know most of the people on the fire department here. I know that if someone was in the water or went through the ice you're not going to stand on the shore and watch. Inasmuch as that is a fact of life, I will most definitely push for the appropriate legislation, insurance coverage, for the necessary equipment, and for the necessary training to have our firefighters respond to any emergency, whether it be on land or on water."

The candidates also fielded a number of questions on road maintenance.

Mavor and Gardner are competing for the post of reeve. Ann Barker, Murray Daniels, Jim Hicks, Dale MacDonald, Moffat, Myrnna McCarthy and Bob Pollard are competing for three councillor positions. Eager and Trevor Pawson are competing for the school trustee position. Eleanor Harrison ran unopposed for the deputy-reeve position, and has been acclaimed.

Somerville, LDL have plenty of candidates from which to choose

Voters in Laxton, Digby and Longford Townships have six candidates from which to choose three people for the position of councillor. The six candidates are: Linda Cole, Wendel (Bob) Fox, Donald Logan Junior, G. Stuart Peel, Barry Scott and Sandra Stevens.

(See profiles of the reeve and deputy-reeve candidates for the municipality elsewhere in this paper.)

Somerville has even more people running for councillors' seats that LDL. Voters will have to choose three from the eight who have thrown their hats in the ring. The eight candidates are: John Austin, Clayton Cameron, Mervyn Hunter, Pete Jarvis, Bonita Riviat, Audrey Thrasher, Gary Trail and James Wakeling-Van Alken.

Incumbent reeve John Huke was acclaimed.

Profiles of the deputy-reeve candidates for Somerville Township are on page 18 of this paper.

LONG-TERM CARE REFORM IN HALIBURTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, PETERBOROUGH AND VICTORIA COUNTIES

The Haliburton, Kawartha and Pine Ridge District Health Council (DHC) invites the general public to attend public meetings being held across the counties of Haliburton Northumberland, Peterborough and Victoria throughout November.

Council's Long-Term Care Planning and Advisory committee in each county will host the meetings to hear the views and suggestions of seniors, persons with disabilities, volunteers, employees and other interested and affected parties, on the creation of multi-service agencies (MSAs).

Ministry of Health policy and recent legislation (Bill 173, The Long-Term Care Act 1994) have put in motion the processes for changes to the community-based service system. The changes are aimed at maintaining seniors and disabled individuals in their own homes and communities and avoiding or delaying institutionalization.

The Public Meetings will ask for comment on issues such as how best to meet consumers needs for community and in-home supports, the geographic boundaries of the MSAs, how many governing boards there should be, the role of volunteers, and retaining agency identification as services integrate.

The following meetings will be held in Haliburton County:

November 8, 1994 - Royal Canadian Legion - Haliburton - 7:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.
November 9, 1994 - Hyland Crest Senior Citizen's Home - Minden - 2:00 p.m. - 4:00 p.m.

If you are unable to attend the above meetings and/or you would like more information, please feel free to call or write The Haliburton, Kawartha and Pine Ridge District Health Council, Box 544, Peterborough, Ontario, K9J 6Z6 (705) 748-2992, or Kate Reed at (705) 286-3892.

Dysart all-candidates meeting

Cooper, Fearrey criticize Dysart, county finances

by Andrew Milne

The house was close to packed, but there were few questions from the large audience at the November 1 Dysart et al candidates meeting.

What little real discussion did occur centred around the municipal and county budgets and reserve funds, and around economic development for the region.

Opening the question period, there was a brief exchange between outgoing reeve H. Curry Bishop, newly elected reeve Murray Fearrey, and deputy-reeve candidate Sid Cooper over municipal and county finances.

Cooper had said in his opening remarks about the municipal finances and reserve funds, "I can tell you right here and now that if someone hadn't gone to bat in the last three years those reserve funds would have been depleted to some extent similar to what has happened already at the county level."

His time had run out at this point, and he had said no more on the subject. But during the question period that followed, Bishop had stood up from the audience to defend the county and municipal records on spending.

Said Bishop, "One of the things that's been alluded to tonight was the depletion of reserves. I'd like to go on record as saying that Dysart council increased the reserves very substantially, and still stuck to a very modest tax increase."

He then went on to say of county finances that, "the reserves at the county were a different matter. The reserves that were depleted there were reserves created from the equipment fund. Myself and council there saw fit to see that the people that were responsible for overrunning their budget were responsible for putting them back... In the last meeting we put that on the roads department, which overspent two years in a row. They created this problem, and they were required to fix it."

Fearrey, however, contested Bishop's answer. Said Fearrey, "I'd just like to set the record straight, Curry. There was $140,000 for the reserve for working fund when I left county council and there isn't any. It was used to reduce the mill rate."

The equipment fund Bishop had been talking about, he said, was another matter.

And Cooper, speaking next, enlarged upon his opening remarks.

Said Cooper, "I did level that — I guess you could call it an accusation — about the use of the reserve funds. So I feel I must tell a little story: a year ago, at budget time, it was apparent from the budget that the amount of money that was going to be spent by our municipality — Dysart — was considerably more than what had been posted in the paper. At that time it was said in the paper that it was 3.5 per cent."

"They had a public meeting," he continued. "I went to it. I was the only public there. But the paper was there — reporters — so I can be hauled up on the carpet here at any time if I say anything that isn't quite correct, and I'm sure I won't. But in any case, I took a look at that budget and the increase in spending was 11 per cent, not 3.5 per cent."

"Curry wasn't there at the time so it's no fault of his — in fact there were only two councillors and the reeve [Chris Hodgson] there at the time. But I did my best to get them to tell me where the money was going to come from. Now if the money's not coming from taxes, in this municipality, where do you think it's coming from? Well, there's only one place it can come from — reserve funds. Because that's the only money we have. How could the taxes be 3.5 per cent and the budget say here 11 per cent?"

"Well, I didn't get an answer. But a week later, when the paper published the spending for that year in the budget, it was cut back down to 3.5 per cent. So don't let anybody tell me there wasn't an intention there. It wasn't done, but the intention was there."

An audience question about what could be done to encourage economic development was the only other highlight, and the only remotely challenging question the candidates had to face.

After a brief preamble, partially supportive of the ability of the local governments, the speaker said, "The whole thing is — what all you people are not doing — you are not bringing a place up here for our young people to work when they come out of school. There isn't a factory in the area. You talk about tourism. It pays seven dollars an hour. Let's get something up here that pays twelve or fifteen dollars an hour... My question is this: are you going to try and get work up here for our young people?"

Said deputy-reeve candidate Bill Davis, "I don't believe you are going to see heavy industry — smokestacks — come to Haliburton... We're too far away from the market."

"But having said that, I would like to say that there are other ways to put people to work. We have in Haliburton county light industry — it's called extended care. It's called nursing homes... We have to encourage people like Extendicare... This type of industry is all I believe we are going to get here."

The meeting was attended by all fifteen candidates running for contested positions, and by Fearrey. Tom Coghlan, acclaimed in Ward three, did not attend.

Consultant explains Redstone study

by Andrew Milne

Michael Michalski says there are a lot of reasons his firm's 1993 Redstone Lake carrying capacity study is so far from agreement with an earlier study.

Michalski did the study for the Municipality of Dysart, which had been approached by a land developer wishing to sever additional lots on the lake. He says Dysart commissioned the study on the condition that the developer pay for it.

Michalski concluded that an additional 57 lots could be developed without threatening water quality in Redstone.

A similar study commissioned by the municipality and done in 1987 by the Greer-Galloway Group had concluded that no more lots should be developed on the lake. The Redstone Lake Cottagers' Association (RLCA) has expressed concern about the difference, and has been granted 90 days by the Dysart municipal council to review the Michalski study, and make a presentation to council.

The Times printed a number of RLCA treasurer Dan McCombe's comments on the studies in the October 24 edition, along with proceedings from the October 11 meeting of Dysart council at which both McCombe and Michalski were in attendance, but was unable to reach Michalski for comment by press time.

Michalski says there are principally two reasons for the difference between the two studies: first, he says, his firm's study used a more complex model of current flow in the lake, based on field research they had done. Second, he says, government guidelines on acceptable levels of phosphorus and oxygen vary over time, as more research is done.

Says Michalski, "The Greer-Galloway study did not take into consideration the flows that come into Little Redstone Lake from Little Redstone River, and part of that water goes one way — north — and part of it goes south. The Greer-Galloway study assumed that the flows went one way or the other. And they undertook two analyses, and then they recommended the lower capacity on that basis... However they did add a caveat that further studies which better reflect the direction of flow might demonstrate a different effect."

Michalski says his study does this. In the summer of 1992, he says, his firm did "drogue" studies — field work in which floats called "drogues" are released and tracked to measure deep water and surface water flow direction. His study is based on the results of this analysis, he says.

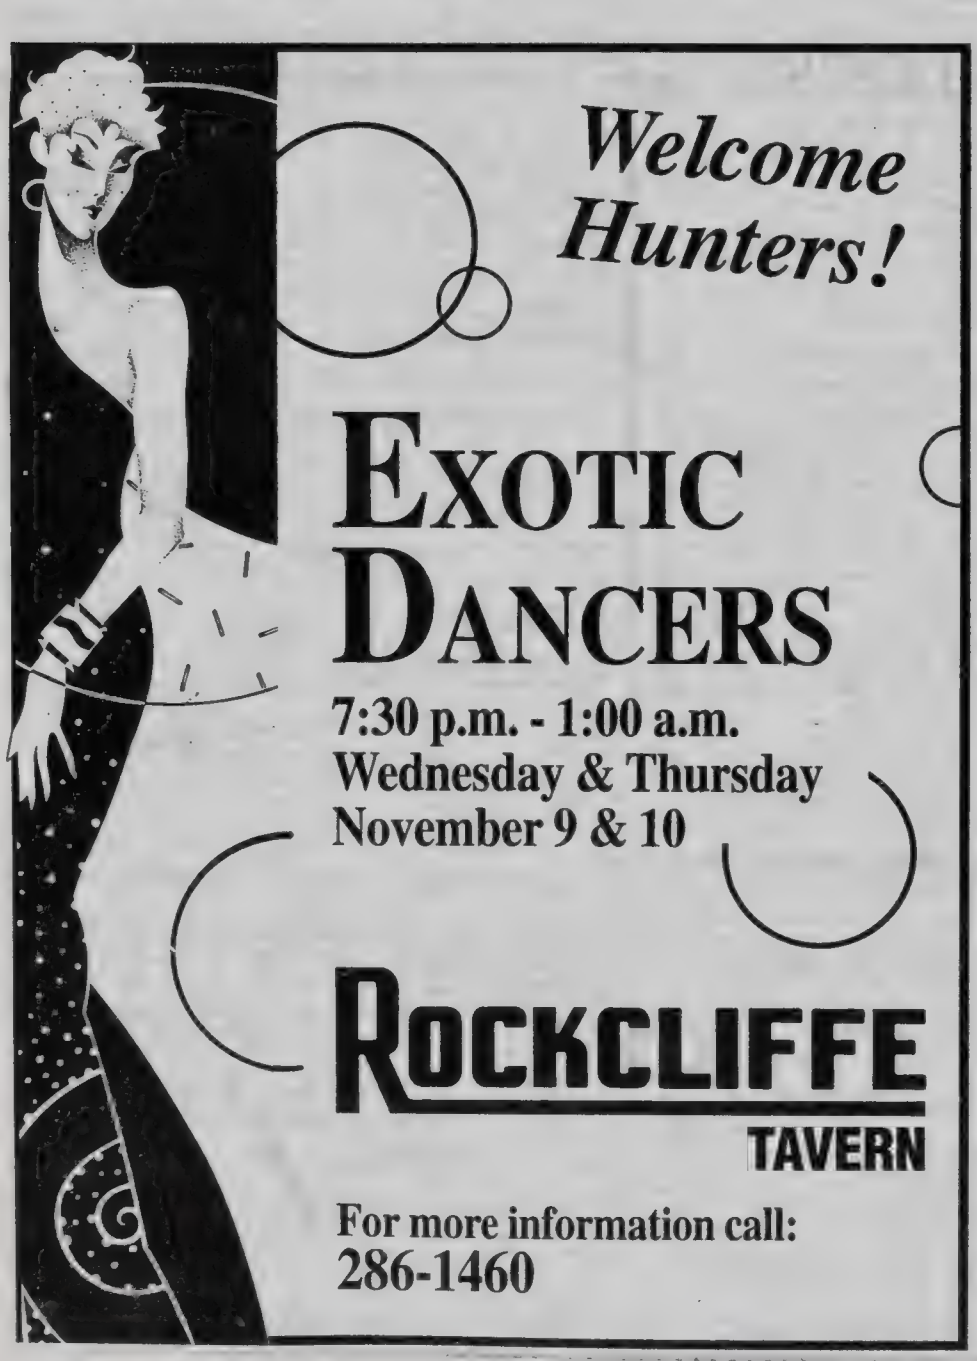
Regarding changing government regulations, he says, "In the Greer-Galloway work, there was nothing done at the time because there weren't evaluatory approaches to look at the habitat per dissolved oxygen for lake trout in the deep waters of the lake. They just weren't developed to any state of sophistication at the time. And of course there are about three or four different versions which the ministry of the environment has developed through their continuing research and which we have applied to this lake."

Though the Ministry of Environment has essentially endorsed the report, says Michalski, the Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) has not. The MNR has told him, he says, that their guidelines for lake trout habitat are not yet finalized, and he will have to wait until they are. Michalski says this is not reasonable, and he should be able to use previously accepted standards — namely the 1984 blue book — until they do come out with criteria.

"The province can't stop and wait for something to happen," he told council.

There are currently 117 lots on the shoreline of Little Redstone. The Michalski study says that, based on water quality, Little Redstone can cope with the phosphorus load from a total of 174 lots, but Michalski stresses that it seems unlikely that, due to other factors, that many lots will be developed. There isn't enough frontage on the lake, he says.

The RLCA will be making their presentation to council on the studies January 9, 1995.



Meet the Snowdon candidates

Variety of candidates running for councillor positions

(from page 26)

Rigney served as a school board trustee in Saskatoon. He worked for Sears prior to his retirement, and finished his career with them as vice-president of public and governmental affairs. His father has lived in the region for 25 years, and Rigney bought property here 12 years ago, on which he has now settled.

"What has happened in the past, says Rigney, "has probably been quite adequate but times are changing."

About employing younger people, Rigney says, "I'm door knocking and I've now done about half of the township, and (I've found) there's a lot more youth and younger families here than I ever suspected, but a lot of them are not employed year round... What we've really got to do is try and see what we can develop economically for these people."

About retirees, Rigney says, "I would like to see a real push towards going after that retirement market — not the Highland Crests and the Extendicares, but rather the subdivisions that are just dedicated to retirees."

Thompson was born and raised on a farm in Little Britain. He has been in the local area for several years now, and has worked for the county in the planning office. He is currently working for Hyland Crest on an apprenticeship. He took one session of a course for administrative clerk-treasurers during his time with the county, and feels he knows a fair bit about the local economy from his experience there.

Says Thompson, "I really enjoy the area and I'd like to see some things implemented — without costing a lot of money, that's for sure — actually even maybe making some money for the communities."

He continues, "I think there has to be restraint on spending. Our township has very good taxes. I think they have to be some of the lowest taxes I've ever come across. Our roads aren't in that bad a shape, though there are a few that we found out about at the all-candidates' meeting."

Woolley has no previous political experience. He has worked in the construction business, as a policeman for ten years, and as a private investigator for Ontario Housing for three years.

"The main issue," says Woolley, "is openness to the people. I think (council) should be more accountable. One of my issues was publicizing important events so people could come up and have input — either by appearing at council meetings or contacting the council."

Woolley says he is running because "I was very disappointed about the acclamation in the last election, and I've been thinking for some time that maybe I have something to contribute to this township."

Woolley concurred with Duhaime's stand on the renovations council approved at their last meeting. Said Woolley, "If that were left to the new council, and I was on the council, from my point of view I would publicize what the expenditure was going to be, invite comments from the people of the town before council would do anything... It's basically that the old council commits to spend that money — and it may be considerably more than [$3,750] in the end — and yet the new council will be responsible for paying that money."

"I don't feel at the moment," he continues, "that it's a good move. I think the question is we want to know more about what the figures are going to be — for the initial expenditures but also the upkeep of the new building compared with the old."

Rotary Club honours Dick Kirkwood

Service Clubs

by Rotarian Gord Graham

The Rotary Club of Minden was proud to have honoured local Dick Kirkwood as Citizen of the Year during a special event held Monday night, October 24, 1994.

Jeanne Anthon made the introduction and Rotary District Governor Sean Kelly presented Dick with a plaque honouring his years of service to the community.

Dick and his wife Laura donated $60 to Rotary causes to celebrate their recent 60th Wedding Anniversary. Rotary donated $200 to Dick and Laura's favourite charity which, at the moment, is the County Town Museum.

Rotary is also proud to announce the wonderful response from the community in donating items for the food bank during Tuesday's (October 25) Bingo. Thank you citizens!

Six boxes of food were delivered to the Food bank the following day. Gifts of non-perishable food items will be accepted at the Rotary Bingo during the next two weeks as well.

Dick Kirkwood, seen here with his wife Laura, has been named Citizen of the Year by the Rotary Club of Minden. The honour recognizes his serve to the community.

An important time for the Legion

Service Clubs
by Comrade Dave MacAdam

The Royal Canadian Legion says, "TAKE TIME TO REMEMBER".

We now have the Brechin-Mara Legion's Memorial Parade and service behind us. Although on Sunday, October 23, rain did wash out the parade, the service was held inside Branch 488. The colours and the pipe band were impressive. Afterwards we enjoyed the fellowship of our Comrades from several other branches in Zone F-4.

The next major event on our annual agenda is the Legion's Poppy Campaign. Many members will by now have participated in distribution of the boxes. The public relations and others will have been seen at various locations pinning poppies on our friends, neighbours and visitors to the community. Wearing a poppy is particularly appropriate now, almost 50 years since the end of World War II. In this way we can all say we "Take Time to Remember", which is the theme of The Royal Canadian Legion for the 50-year anniversary celebration.

When you read this, Branch 636 will have hosted our Remembrance Parade and Service in Minden on Sunday, November 6. The Service of Remembrance took place at the Cairn next to the Minden Library. A reception at the Branch followed. Comrades from other branches as well as scouts, guides and cadets also took part along with members of the public.

On November 11 some of our members will be joining with members of Haliburton Branch 129 for a parade, service and reception afterwards. The service in the branch starts at 10 a.m. and is followed by the parade to the Cenotaph for wreath dedications and tributes.

On November 11 also, other Branch 636 Comrades and L.A. members with their colour party will be accompanying the students from Archie Stouffer Elementary School from their campus to the County Cairn in Minden. There will be a service and wreath tributes placed at 11 a.m. The public is welcome at this service also.

Our Ways and Means Committee has been busy planning a variety of events. Firstly we wish to advise that the Branch is hosting a Veteran's Appreciation night on November 12 at 7 p.m. Member vets, their spouses and sweethearts are invited. They will be treated to a delicious dinner and an evening of fun and entertainment. Also on November 26, the Ways and Means Committee are planning a St. Andrew's Night, details of which will be advertised later.

In the meantime, the Honours and Awards evening on October 15 and the Italian Night with yards of spaghetti are past. It was very nice to see Comrade Melvin Robertson presented with the LMSM (Legion Meritorious Service Medal). Mel has been a long-time member of The Royal Canadian Legion. He has been active on the executive of both Branches 129 and 636. In addition, he has served as Zone Commander of Zone F-4 and served on District F's Council. We are proud to have him as a member of Branch 636.

We are also sorry to report that more recently Mel was taken ill and was taken to Minden Hospital. We sincerely wish him a fast recovery.

The Honours and Awards Committee also presented Fraternal Affiliate Harold Parkes with an Honorary Membership in recognition of his many hours of volunteer work, especially participation on the Property Committee for the good of the Branch. We thank you and wish to congratulate both Mel and Harold. They have earned these awards.

Comrade Bill Bonner has requested volunteer bar stewards to occasionally serve on the bar committee. I must say I have enjoyed doing this from time to time and find it is not overtaxing. A small amount of training is necessary. Some of you members of Branch 636 might enjoy being active on the bar committee here. You do get to know many nice people.

In addition to Comrade Mel, we have learned that Comrade Lillian Davidson is confined to hospital as is Comrade Sam Rogers. We sincerely wish all of these members improved health and better times ahead.

Lastly, we remind our members of their oath on joining the Legion, to participate in Poppy Campaigns. Please "Take Time to Remember".

CLASS ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT
HALIBURTON COUNTY ROAD NUMBER 19
(HARBURN ROAD)

Public Comment Invited

The County of Haliburton is planning improvements to the Harburn Road from 0.5km North of Tattersall Road to 0.5km North of Carol Road.

This Project is being planned as a SCHEDULE B undertaking, following the requirements of the CLASS ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT FOR MUNICIPAL ROADS PROJECTS.

The preliminary preferred improvement, being considered at this time, is to reconstruct the road to an 80km/hr design standard. This construction would be carried out in two phases. Phase One would include the section from Indian Point Road to 0.5km north of Carroll Road and would be completed in the fall of 1995. Phase Two would include the section south of Indian Point Road to 0.5km north of Tattersall Road and would be completed in the fall of 1996.

Public input and comment are invited, for incorporation into the planning and design of this project, and will be received until the 23rd of December 1994. Subject to comments received and the receipt of necessary approvals, the County of Haliburton intends to proceed with the planning, design and construction of this project.

For further information on this project, or to inspect a copy of the Class Environmental Assessment, please contact Mr. Douglas Ray, Project Co-ordinator, Haliburton County Roads Department, Box 880, Minden, Ontario K0M 2K0. Telephone (705) 286-1762.

SNOW REMOVAL

The Highway Traffic Act RSO 1990, Section 170 (12), states "...no person shall park or stand a vehicle on a highway in such a manner as to interfere with the movement of traffic or the clearing of snow from the highway". A constable or County By-Law officer may have the vehicle removed from the roadway and stored at the owner's expense.

Section 181 states "No person shall deposit snow or ice on a roadway without permission in writing to do so from the Ministry or the road authority responsible for maintenance of the road. The penalty on conviction is a fine of not more than $90.00.

The cooperation of all motorists in these matters would be appreciated for efficient winter maintenance of County Roads and the safety of others.

A passion for consuming

Reflections
by David Suzuki

In trying to confront the awesome challenges created by the impact of the steep rise in human numbers, technology and consumption in the past 40 years, the hardest part is recognizing how destructive some of our most cherished beliefs are.

On October 18 on the television program, Canada AM, co-hosts Keith Morrison and Valerie Pringle engaged in the banter which makes them so entertaining. In promoting an up-coming interview with the president of K-Mart Canada, Morrison gushed, "I love shopping at K-Mart," and went on to rhapsodize that things are so cheap, he often ends up leaving the store with $300 worth of stuff he didn't need! Pringle nodded in agreement and concluded, "But it feels so nice." This cute little exchange glorified rampant over-consumption that has exerted such pressure on the planet's resources.

Human beings have a multiplicity of physical, social and spiritual needs that are essential for a rich, meaningful life. But more and more, as Morrison and Pringle richly illustrated, we exceed these needs by a craving to be consumers. The average Canadian in the 1990s consumes at least four times as much as people did in 1900. In a finite world, there are limits to how much each of us can use and leave a future for generations to come. But when consumption has become a way of life that is essential to the economy, can we ever admit to having more than we need and focus instead, on quality of products and living? Do we need it all, how much is enough and does shopping make us happy?

Only 25 per cent of mall shoppers surveyed across the United States were actually after a specific item; instead 53 per cent of grocery and 47 per cent of hardware store acquisitions were, like Morrison's K-Mart purchases, bought on impulse, a spur of the moment decision (Wall Street Journal, July 30, 1989). It is difficult to resist the dazzling array of more than 25,000 supermarket items, 200 different kinds of cereal and 11,000 magazines clamouring for our attention (New York Times, February 14). "Store-hopping" is so addictive, it is named as the favourite activity of 93 per cent of American Teenage girls (Laurence Shames 1989, The Hunger for More). Perhaps its the result of the 360,000 ads the average high school graduate has been exposed to (Alan Durning 1991, How Much is Enough).

Life was simpler in the '40s and '50s when I was a boy. Rivers, swamps, overgrown empty lots and woods were an irresistible magnet where, in the company of other species, countless days could be filled with constant surprises and delight.

The modern landscape conceived and created by human beings, allows domesticated or tamed animals and plants a place while we try to eradicate uninvited "weeds" or "pests". In this simplified environment, youth in their perennial search for novelty and stimulation, 'cruise the malls" or "check out the stores."

The ecological consequences of excessive consumerism in the industrialized countries are immense, giving each of us an impact on the Earth 40 to 100 times as great as the average person in a Third World nation. Morrison's paean to shopping has enormous ramifications when developing countries like China and India use their rapidly expanding economies to emulate us.

Pringle's interjection about how "nice" impulse buying feels reinforces the notion that consumption is like a powerful drug that is perfect for an economy built on the necessity of constant growth. If people carefully saved and bought only what they really needed, it would create havoc with the economy. But for the insatiable consumer, the fleeting jolt of pleasure of a spur-of-the-moment purchase soon gives way to a craving for more.

On Canada AM, the president of K-Mart declared that business competition created by huge transnational companies means "the consumer is the winner."

He may be right, if all we are is consumers. But we have families, we live within communities, we support governments to represent us. Globalization of a consumer-driven economy obliterates local communities by driving small merchants into extinction. When products produced in factories in China, fruit and vegetables grown in Mexico and Chile and lamb raised in New Zealand are cheaper than those made or grown in Canada, local farms, businesses and communities disappear.

If it matters that we reside within a community, that we know our local merchants as people, that we have pride of place and belonging, then the K-Marts of the world, , free trade and the vaunted global economy are not the unquestioned benefit our leaders assume. It may not be nice, but we can't let some of our most deeply held beliefs go by unchallenged any longer.

Acid rain report

The following report on acid rain deposition was recorded at the Ministry of Environment and Energy site at Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period October 23 to 29:

Oct. 23: 6 mm of rain with a pH of 4.2, tracked from Lake Erie and southern Ontario.

Oct. 24: 10 mm of rain with a pH of 5.0, tracked from central Wisconsin, central Michigan, and Huron.

Oct. 25: 16 mm of rain with a pH of 5.2, tracked from northern Wisconsin, northern Michigan and Lake Huron.

Environmental damage to lakes and streams is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. pH reading of less than 4.0 are considered serious.

Hallowe'en is over once more and many places held special parties with games etc., for the youngsters. We at "The Terrace" had our share on a lovely night.

Heard the yearly moose hunt was successful in our area with most camps bagging a moose. Hopefully the deer season will prove the same in the next two weeks. Have a safe and happy hunt.

Very soon it will be election day so make sure you take the opportunity to make your choice. Many countries have no choice of leaders so we should make sure we exercise our vote.

The County Town Museum held their monthly meeting November 2 with business and reports followed by a pot luck at the Library/Cultural Centre. They are planning to have their second Christmas Carol Service at the "Wee Kirk" on December 16 from 7-9 p.m. and then again on Sunday afternoon December 18 from 2-4 p.m. so make a note of these dates and join them.

* * *

A birthday party was held Sunday, October 30 for Mary Cox at the home of Ron and Shirley Cox on Bethel Road with all the family present. A great time was had by all.

Sincere sympathy goes to the family and friends of the late Marion Barclay and also to the Schroter family on the death of brother Carl Schroter of Lindsay.

It has certainly been a great Fall and we will surely be surprised by the cold weather which will be here soon. I have enjoyed the walking, which I do almost every day, and know many others enjoy it as well. It's nice to get a smile in passing or to stop for a chat now and again.

October Weather

by Phil Graham

	C	F
Average High	14.0	57.2
Average Low	1.2	34.1
Average for the Month	7.6	45.6
Average for last October	5.6	42.0
Highest Temperature (October 8)	25.0	77.0
Lowest Temperature (October 11)	-5.0	23.0
Rain	58.1 mm	2.2 in.
Rainfall last October	116.6 mm	4.5 in.
Days mostly sunny	17
Days with rain	7
Days with frost	14

Not too many complaints about October. Sunny and warm with not much rain and no snow. The leaves stayed on the trees an extra couple of weeks, giving a great show of colour. The average temperature was 2 degrees C (3.5 F) above last October with the rainfall this year being much less than last; 2.2 inches versus 4.5 inches. Due to the many clear days, there was more than the normal frosty, crisp mornings. All in all a good month.

HEALTH PLANNER

The Haliburton, Kawartha & Pine Ridge District Health Council requires a mature, experienced planner with a breadth of planning, research and policy experience in the health care sector. The planner will have lead responsibilities in mental health planning and the management of a mental health project planning team. Additionally, the individual will be the Council's principal staff contact and planner in the health promotion and substance abuse sectors. The planner will work with senior government, providers, consumers and the community in facilitating change within the health care system.

Excellent skills are required in:

- planning (project management, research, policy analysis and issues identification);
- community development (community liaison and consultation);
- facilitation (partnership creation); and
- communication (superior written and verbal skills).

The position is based in Peterborough with travel throughout the four county district (Haliburton, Northumberland, Peterborough, Victoria) and related regions.

A university degree and progressively responsible experience in health care systems planning or related experience and education is required. Council offers a competitive compensation package. Resumés are to be forwarded by November 16th, 1994 to:

Executive Director
Haliburton, Kawartha & Pine Ridge

CARDS OF THANKS

Robert and Florence Walker would like to thank all our friends and relatives for gifts, cards and money we received and all of those who came to Kinmount Legion which made our 50th Anniversary so special. Thanks to our family, Bazil Walker, Brenda Walker, Barbara Walker, Janice Shaw, Linda Snoddon who worked so hard to make us feel so happy. We Love you all, God bless all of you.

The Minden Firefighters Association would like to thank Leitha Grexton of Leitha's Sweets & Treats for the Goodie Bags she made up for Hallowe'en. A special thanks for the surprise box. Thank you. Minden Firefighters' Association, Bill Hogg, Fire Chief.

To the very generous people of Lutterworth Pines and also Adele Mc. Robin Hood, Caspar the Ghost and Spotty the Leopard say thank you for all the Hallowe'en loot. None of them will need another sugar fix source for at least three months!

The family of the late Eunice Wright (nee Stamp) would like to express our appreciation for all the prayers, food, floral tributes, donations and visitations during our time of need. We would especially like to say a special thank you to Randy and Maureen Warburton, Mrs. Rennick, Carol English, Pat Bain, Judy Johnson and all the ladies who provided a lovely lunch. Also, we would like to thank the Monk family for their thoughtfulness and concern.
Truman Wright.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of
ASH, Garnet William
"Ode to Hyland Crest"

It's amazing how the years do change
The plans in people's lives
We looked so forward to retirement
But our plans went awry
The dreadful disease called Alzheimers
Struck our happy home one day
I couldn't believe my eyes and ears
Things my husband said and did
From Doctors to Neurologists
Psychiatrists we went
To seek help for my husband
As my nerves were almost spent.
Haliburton Red Cross Home Care
Was then recommended to me
What a super organization
For those of us in need.
Lois Titus was assigned to our home
A wonderful lady is she
This gave me a break
For a few hours a week
Through this wonder Society.
As time went by the disease progressed
No longer could we cope
Further steps had to be taken
Then all I did was hope.
In April of 1989 a phone call came one day
It was Gary McKnight from Hyland Crest
Offering a home where my husband could stay.
What a wonderful home my husband has now
So cozy and comfy and clean
May God Bless You all
For doing the job
That should have been left up to me.
Carry on Hyland Crest for many a year
High Praise for a job well done
Nor only for Garnet but all residents there
Who's hearts you have faithfully won.
On November 12, 1993
The Good Lord took him away
To Heaven above, with all His love
Especially from those left at home.
Lovingly remembered by wife Dorothy, families and friends.

ARNOLD, John Wayne - November 1, 1992.
Do not stand
At my grave and weep,
I am not there,
I do not sleep.
Lovingly remembered by wife Fran, children and grandchildren.
